

Latest Economic News Unpleasant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government today reported the economy advanced at a rapid rate of 14.3 per cent during the first quarter of the year, with inflation soaring at a rate of 6 per cent.

The Commerce Department said the country's gross national product rose $40.6 billion from January through March to reach a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.235 trillion.

The increase compares with a GNP advance in the fourth quarter of last year of $30.9 billion or 11 per cent at an annual rate.

The gross national product is the value of the nation's output of goods and services and is the broadest indication of the economy's performance.

Without the rate of inflation of 6 per cent, the real output during the first quarter was 7.9 per cent, compared with real growth of 8 per cent in the fourth quarter of 1972.

But the rate of inflation of 6 per cent during the period was bad news for the economy. It was the biggest quarterly jump since the fourth quarter of 1970 when it was 6.3 per cent.

The 14.3 per cent increase in the GNP equaled the increase in the first quarter of 1971 when the economy was recovering from a General Motors strike and from a recession.

One factor contributing to the big increase was a sharp rise in consumer spending which makes two thirds of the GNP. The administration originally had projected a $35 billion increase in GNP for the quarter.

The percentage increase for the first quarter is not itself a record. There was a 14.3 per cent increase in the first quarter of 1971 and a 14.7 per cent advance in early 1951.

The consumer price index, a measure of retail price trends, will be released Friday and that also is expected to show a sharp increase, especially because the March wholesale price index advanced 2.2 per cent, the highest rate since the Korean war.

Mitchell And Dean Linked To Watergate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate spy team was commanded by two leading Nixon administration officials who later tried to buy the silence of the arrested conspirators, the Washington Post says.

Jeb Stuart Magruder, former No. 2 man in the Nixon re-election campaign, will tell a federal grand jury today that former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and present White House Counsel John W. Dean III planned and approved the bugging raid on Democratic national headquarters, the Post said in today's edition.

Magruder already has given his account to federal prosecutors, the newspaper reported.

Dean soon will resign and his example may well be followed by H. R. Haldeman, White House chief of staff, the paper quoted executive branch sources as saying.

The Washington Post, quoting sources, said in today's edition that criminal indictments are expected for both Mitchell and Dean as a result of Magruder's statements. Magruder is scheduled to repeat his testimony under oath to the grand jury investigating the Watergate affair.

Mitchell dismissed the Post report as "nonsense." Dean and Magruder could not be reached for comment early today.

"This gets a little sillier as it goes along, doesn't it?" Mitchell told a reporter as he left his New York City apartment this morning and was asked about the Post report. "I've had a good night's sleep and haven't heard any of this nonsense." He appeared relaxed as he boarded a chauffeured station wagon and lit his pipe.

The White House refused immediate comment on details of the report.

However, Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said, "The White House is not prepared to react to a story based on sources. At a time when the rights of individuals would not be jeopardized by a comment, an appropriate comment will be made."

Devan Shumway, spokesman for the Committee for the Re-election of the President, said he was not in a position to comment on the Post story or to indicate any knowledge of whether indictments or resignations were imminent.

Magruder told the prosecutors, the Post said, that he was present at a February 1972 meeting in Mitchell's Justice Department office attended also by the attorney general, Dean, and G. Gordon Liddy, one of seven men convicted in the conspiracy.

The allegations came on the heels of President Nixon's statement Tuesday that his own month-long investigation had exposed "major new developments" in the case. Nixon said any White House aide indicted in the affair would be suspended immediately and any convicted would be fired.

Extended Controls Facing Disaster?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wages and prices break loose from government controls in 11 days unless Congress can do in one day what it has failed to do in three months.

"We're flirting with disaster," Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Wednesday after the Senate killed a parliamentary move on the bill to extend President Nixon's wage-price control authority.

Ervin Eyes Nixon Claim

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. says the special Senate Watergate investigating committee he heads will make the final decision on whether White House aides called to testify will be permitted to sidestep questions.

In announcing on Tuesday that his aides would be free to testify before the Ervin committee, President Nixon said he was still reserving executive privilege and that it may be "asserted during the course of questioning as to any question."

Nixon previously had said that under the doctrine of executive privilege he would not permit aides to testify before the panel.

Ervin told newsmen here Wednesday that the President had agreed to let White House aides testify before the committee probing the break-in and bugging at Democratic national headquarters in Washington's Watergate complex last year because "he knew he was wrong."

But the North Carolina Democrat said the President's action in reversing his decision represented "not a victory for Congress so much as for constitutional government and the American people."

Weather

Mostly cloudy and warm today, tonight and tomorrow with chances of showers or thunderstorms. High today and tomorrow in the low 70s. Low tonight near 60. Chances of rain are 50 per cent today, 30 per cent tonight and tomorrow. High Wednesday, 67; low, 58.

The action came before the Senate recessed until April 30—the day the controls expire—for Easter vacation.

The move rejected by the Senate, 35 to 31, would have sent the bill back to a House-Senate conference committee.

Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., promoted the move after GOP leaders predicted the legislation would lose in the House. All Republicans on the conference committee, except Sen. Robert Packwood of Oregon, refused Tuesday to sign the report recommending that both houses accept legislation extending the President's control authority.

Particularly, the Republicans disliked one provision that would require companies to reveal publicly their justification for raising prices, Proxmire said.

Also attached as riders to the wage-price extension—and objected to by Republicans—were amendments providing the President with authority to ration fuels, and to exempt more working poor from wage controls.

Though the House is in session today, it plans no action on wage-price controls. Anyway, the legislation cannot be sent to the President until the Senate acts on it finally, too.

Thus, the possibility was created that labor and industry would be free of any wage-price limitations May 1, unless the situation can be resolved when both houses return April 30.

The legislation has been moving through the congressional mill since the session began in January.

GRAFFITI

ALL I KNOW ABOUT MONEY MATTERS IS THAT MONEY MATTER$

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's insistence on broad authority for executive silence began at the Watergate's edge—but gave way to compromise amid a tide of congressional and political protest.

His decision to permit testimony by his aides in the Senate's Watergate investigation averts what could have been a constitutional showdown on the doctrine of executive privilege.

But that issue hasn't gone away. And there remain disputes over war-making powers and presidential authority to undo programs enacted by Congress.

All three involve what the Constitution says and what it means.

As lawyer, candidate and President, Nixon has pronounced himself dedicated to a strict interpretation of the Constitution. He set that as his test for Supreme Court nominees.

The current controversies between Congress and the White House hinge on who does the interpreting. Presidential authority in the areas of executive privilege, undeclared war and the impoundment of appropriated funds involves powers that are implied, not spelled out, in the Constitution.

Before he became President, Nixon criticized the Supreme Court for decisions he said moved it into lawmaking areas that really belonged to Congress.

"... Under our Constitution, the true responsibility for writing the law is with Congress," he said on July 7, 1968. "The responsibility for executing the law is with the executive and the responsibility for interpreting the law resides in the Supreme Court. I believe in a strict interpretation of the Supreme Court's functions."

Nixon critics contend now that his actions are blurring those lines of constitutional authority.

Executive privilege is a doctrine—not a law—under which presidents have refused to permit congressional testimony by their aides.

Earlier in the Watergate controversy, Nixon expanded upon it to declare that past and present members of his staff would decline to appear before formal sessions of congressional committees. The administration said it could be invoked to cover any executive branch employee if the President decided silence was in order.

In yielding to permit appearances, but not necessarily answers to all questions, in the Watergate investigation, Nixon said he was making an exception, not dropping his rule.

Pressure and protests from leading figures in his own Republican party preceded the shift by a President who once had challenged the Senate to a

Supreme Court test on the issue.

It could flare again another, lesser controversy, for the White House has cited executive privilege in refusing to give Congress records of government-financed travel during the 1972 presidential campaign.

The war powers controversy arose time and again during the Vietnam conflict, and it has been revived by new U.S. bombing in Cambodia and Laos.

Nixon critics contend he has no legal or constitutional authority for the bombing, and there is a move underway in the Senate to ban it unless Congress specifically approves.

The administration has claimed authority for Indochina actions in the President's constitutional role as commander in chief.

"The administration's constitutional authority to bomb Cambodia rests on the circumstance that we are coming out of a 10-year period of conflict," said Secretary of Defense Elliot L. Richardson. "This is the windup."

That has been challenged in Congress. Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., contended that any new action in Indochina is in effect a new war, requiring approval of Congress.

Legislation now pending, and opposed by the administration, would define and limit executive authority to use U.S. troops abroad in any future conflict.

In the third area of disputed privileges, the administration has been challenged in court for refusing to spend money on some programs despite laws creating and financing them.

Twice, in cases involving impounded highway aid funds and the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity, federal judges have ruled that the administration acted illegally.

Either case could wind up in the Supreme Court. And legislation in the Senate would empower Congress to overrule the President whenever he seeks to impound appropriated funds. Nixon has withheld at least $8.7 billion voted by Congress.

See No Fight Over OEO Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Post says in today's editions that the Nixon administration will not fight a judge's decision that stopped the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The Post quoted White House sources to the effect that the administration was concerned that some portions of the decision, if appealed, could be expanded to have an adverse effect on other Nixon decisions, such as impounding of funds.

A spokesman for OEO Director Howard Phillips would neither confirm nor deny the Post report.

Massive Gilligan Budget Faces Surgery In GOP Senate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John Gilligan's $9.9 billion budget passed the Democratic-controlled House Wednesday and headed for the knife that the Republican-controlled Senate is certain to wield.

Political leaders on both sides agreed the spending proposal for the next two years would eventually be decided by a joint House-Senate conference committee.

Passage of the bill in the House marked the beginning of the Easter recess for the General Assembly. Both houses return May 1.

During the day, 241 bills were introduced into the House and 103 in the Senate. The day marked the deadline for introduction of new measures.

Republicans in the House, controlled by Democrats 58-41, called the budget a "tax grab," but could do nothing to stop it from passage.

The vote was 56-39.

Republicans, who control the Senate 17-16, have already indicated they will concentrate on the upper chamber for changes in the bill.

House Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, led the fight against the budget. He accused Gilligan of failing to keep tax reform promises of 1971 when the state income tax passed.

Kurfess, who supported the income tax, along with 12 other House Republicans, said Gilligan refused to correct inequities although he found $118 million in extra money from income tax revenues.

"There it was, at the end of the rainbow," said Kurfess of the extra money. "What's his excuse now?"

House Finance Committee Chairman Myrl Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville, who carried the bill on the floor, said it meets the state's education needs and provided money for other areas.

Shoemaker, a fiscal conservative, said attempts to change it would be "irresponsible and foolhardy and probably subject to executive veto."

Republicans made several attempts to increase spending, but all were shot down.

Following the budget vote, the House concurred in Senate amendments to the administration's $92.2 million federal revenue sharing bill. It now goes to Gilligan for signing into law.

Democrats approved three amendments to the budget, including one that excluded Youngstown State University from a freeze on student fees for the next two years.

Rep. George D. Tablack, D-52 Campbell, who sponsored the amendment, said Youngstown had not had a boost in fees for three years. It will seek an increase from $150 to $189 a quarter, still within the state limit of $210.

Another Democratic amendment removed from the bill restrictions, added in committee, to police honorariums and leaves of absences for university professors and require them to work a certain number of classroom hours each week.

Republicans sought to limit welfare appropriations to one year and make the budget fund a Vietnam veterans bonus, as well as appropriate an extra $143.6 million for property tax relief. All were shot down.

The bill, as passed, contains $500,000 to plan a "consortium" medical school at Wright State University, Dayton, that would also serve Miami and Central State Universities.

Another $1.5 million would provide the same type of facility to serve the University of Akron, Kent State and Youngstown universities.

Shoemaker gave the following breakdown of the $9,918,000,000 that would be spent in the two-year state bookkeeping period beginning July 1: (Amount of increase, from last biennium, in parentheses)

Education—Primary and secondary, $2 billion ($316 million); higher education, $768.9 million ($154.5 million); and other educational programs, $18 million ($4.5 million).

Human Services—Manpower development, $171.9 million ($2.1 million); Health, $93 million ($11.8 million); Mental Health and Mental Retardation, $489.3 million ($97 million); welfare, $1.8 billion, federal funds included ($467 million); occupational safety and insurance, $26.9 million ($4.9 million); other human service programs, $10.8 million ($1.7 million).

System of Justice—Law enforcement, $147.7 million ($27.6 million); judicial, $15.4 million ($3 million); quasi-judicial $2 million ($500,000); and rehabilitation and corrections $203.9 million ($73.7 million).

General Government—Legislature $12.6 million ($1.8 million); fiscal administration, $348.1 million ($103.5 million); property tax relief, $347 million ($217 million); personnel administration, $34.4 million ($14.1 million); regulatory programs, $512.4 million ($9.8 million); public works, $12.8 million ($2.2 million); other general government, $5.2 million ($1.4 million).

Environmental Protection—$116.6 million, ($48.8 million).

Economic Development, Recreation, and Transportation—$995.2 million ($4.3 million).

Capital Improvements and Long-Term Financing—$93.4 million ($54.3 million).

Aid to Local Governments—$881.6 million ($156.6 million).

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices held to their modest gains today but showed little inclination to rally further.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up 3.54 at 961.85, little changed from a half-hour earlier. Advances led declines on the New York Stock Exchange about 2 to 1.

Analysts said the rise was due in part to technical factors and to the growing state of strong corporate earnings reports.

"Most of the activity is in the blue-chip sector, spurred on by excellent earnings reports," said Alan R. Shaw, analyst with Harris, Upham & Co.

International Telephone was volume leader on the Big Board, off 1 1/4 to 36 1/2 after reports that the Internal Revenue Service was reconsidering its decision to allow ITT's merger with Hartford Fire Insurance to be tax-free to Hartford shareholders.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index rose .02 to 24.06, while the noon Big Board index was up .24 at 59.49.

Community Development Revenue Sharing Plan Bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today sends Congress his proposed legislation replacing numerous specific community-aid programs with $2.3 billion a year in special revenue-sharing funds.

"This aid will have no strings attached as long as it is used for community development," Nixon said last month in announcing his special revenue sharing proposal.

"Your local leaders can go on spending it the way Washington was spending it if they like. But they would also be free to work out better plans without having to get Washington's approval," he continued.

Nixon said the measure is intended to replace what he called "inflexible and fragmented" categorical grant-in-aid programs such as Model Cities and urban renewal plus projects providing grants for water and sewer projects, demolition, neighborhood facilities and rehabilitation work.

Nixon first proposed the community development legislation in 1971 but failed to muster enough support in either the House or the Senate.

Among features of his new proposal are:

- The money for cities and urban counties would be based on a formula reflecting community needs and there would be assurances that this would not be less than received under the previous programs.
- Funding would be provided for smaller communities.
- While activities now supported by categorical grants may be continued, local leaders would determine whether to do so.
- Recipients would be required to show the federal government only that they are complying with federal statutes in the way they are spending revenue-sharing money.

—Shared revenues would not have to be matched by local funds.

While the Better communities Act would replace seven Housing and Urban Development categorical programs it would not affect HUD's housing and community planning authority.

The administration said a large share of the total funds appropriated annually under the act—about 78 percent by the fifth year at a $2.3 billion level—would be allocated and made available directly to all central cities in metropolitan areas; all cities over 50,000 population, and all urban counties with a population of over 200,000.

Boosters Plan May 11 Smorgasbord

Circleville Band Boosters held its fourth meeting April 12 to make plans for the upcoming smorgasbord.

Twenty-six members met in the high school band room, along with two guests.

Mrs. Monty Kirkwood announced the smorgasbord date would be May 11 and listed committees. These are:

- Mrs. Clyde Cook Jr. and Mrs. M. C. Kirkwood, co-chairmen;
- Mrs. Clarence Happeney Jr. and Mrs. Robert Bauer, publicity;
- Mrs. Larry McFadden and Mrs. John Simison tickets;
- Mrs. William Stout, pur chasing;
- Mrs. Charles Allison and Mrs. Robert Schumm, kitchen;
- Mrs. William Hoffman Jr. and Mrs. Bill Ankrom, dining room;
- Mrs. Ben Brian and Mrs. Robert Scherer, food tables;
- Robert Lucas, clean up;
- Eugene Dowler, dish washer room;
- Mrs. Donald Hill, contact;
- Mrs. Charles Scheiber, treasurer;
- Clyde Cook Jr. and M. C. Kirkwood Jr., coke machine.

President Monty Kirkwood introduced Gary Dean, band director, who was one of the guests. Dean reviewed the band's growth this year and announced two dates for the concert this year—May 11 and 12. He advised that a small token charge would be asked for the concert and the proceeds would be used for a camp scholarship program. Tickets are to go on sale May 1. The second performance will be held Saturday if there is a good response to ticket sales.

Marilyn Johnson proposed a banquet for band members. The idea was approved and May 17 was set for the dinner to be held in the high school cafeteria. Band boosters will pay for band members. Parents and guests will be asked to purchase their own tickets.

Ray Kline Jr., salesman representing the Fechhumer Bros. Co. in Cincinnati, was the other guest. Kline displays several different types of front breast shields and overlays for uniforms. These are to be purchased for the color guard members and Tigerettes.

A slate of officers for the coming Booster year was presented by Ed Farynowski for consideration. Those selected are:

- Robert Lucas, president;
- Dee Bowers, secretary;
- Jean Schieber, treasurer;
- Mr. and Mrs. William Rahe, project chairmen;
- Gene Dowler, membership chairman;
- Patty Kirkwood and Peg Shearer, uniform chairmen.

Members of the nominating committee were Judy Stout, Farynowski, Doc Owens, Bill Hoffman Jr. and Peg Shearer, chairman.

Police said Casey signed a statement admitting he drove a car through the Willowbend addition Wednesday firing a .22 rifle. He also admitted he killed a drive-in food store clerk during a $70 robbery last Feb. 21, officers said.

The dead in Wednesday's shooting included Beulah K. Davis, 86; Jana Whatley, 10; and Claire Jakubowski, 5.

Casey was charged with three counts of murder and two of assault to murder in Wednesday's shootings and with murder and robbery by firearms in the earlier slaying.

Casey blamed Wednesday's shootings on a fight with his girl friend, a quantity of beer and marijuana and the murder of his father.

He told officers his father, Theron, a chemical controller working out of Newark, N.J., was robbed and killed in New York City in June 1970. He said the elder Casey was killed by two heroin addicts, and "ever since then I had a real grudge."

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — "I didn't know any of them," Larry DeLon Casey said after he was charged with killing three persons and wounding two others during a shooting spree in a southwest Houston residential area. Two of the dead were children.

"I didn't really believe I had killed anybody. I didn't realize what I was doing at the time," the 21-year-old man told newsmen after his arrest Wednesday.

Meany Feud With Brennan Broadened

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Meany has recalled a top AFL-CIO official serving on Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan's staff. It was the latest move in Meany's continuing feud with his former labor associate.

Robert M. McGlotten is expected to resign as a special assistant to Brennan and return to his $22,000-a-year job as assistant director of the AFL-CIO's civil rights department.

"He will be back on the payroll Monday," an AFL-CIO spokesman said.

Brennan's press secretary, Thomas J. Costigan, said he knew nothing about it. "We have not received any resignation," Costigan said.

McGlotten had been on an indefinite leave of absence from the AFL-CIO since January. Meany, AFL-CIO president, had sent McGlotten to the Labor Department at Brennan's request, a federation spokesman said.

At Labor, McGlotten was earning more than $30,000.

"It's a meeting of the minds between George Meany and Bob McGlotten because of the events of last week," the AFL-CIO spokesman said when asked why McGlotten was returning.

The spat started two weeks ago with Meany accusing Brennan of selling out his trade union principles over the administration's minimum wage proposal, which would give teenagers a lower wage than adults for the same work.

House Rejects Bid To Divert Highway Cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House today rejected, 215 to 190, a Senate-passed amendment that would have permitted cities to spend their share of federal highway trust funds for mass transit projects.

The vote was subject to final approval of a $25.6-billion highway bill to which the amendment for the authority was proposed.

Highway supporters, including Rep. William H. Harsha, R-Ohio, contended the action would bankrupt the highway trust fund. He said the fund does not have enough money for both highways and mass transit.

"You can't make two quarts of gin in a one-quart jar," Harsha said. "There just isn't enough money in the highway trust fund."

But mass transit backers including Rep. Edward Boland, D-Mass., stressed cities would have only the option of using their share of highway money for mass transit if they chose.

Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., quoted President Nixon as telling congressional leaders Wednesday that the role of the automobile must be re-examined if the nation is to solve its energy crisis.

Mass transit forces enlisted governors and mayors across the country as well as one of President Nixon's top aides in a lobbying drive for the vote and claimed before they lost that they thought they were going to win.

Money, Volunteers Are Needed For Circleville After-Prom Party

Following the Circleville Junior-Senior Prom May 19, parents of students in the junior class are planning to host the traditional after-prom dance and party.

This year, the event will be held in

YMCA Hires Girls' Sports Instructor

MRS. LINDA DILTZ

Mrs. James L. (Linda) Diltz has been hired by the YMCA to teach classes to grade school, junior and senior high girls.

A girl's slowpitch Soft Ball Clinic will be offered for Junior and Senior high school girls, meeting on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 3:45 to 5:15 p.m. This class will be held from May 1 to May 24. The class will be limited to 20 girls, however, if there is sufficient interest, an additional class will be set up.

The clinic provides for the development of the basic fundamentals of softball and an overall understanding of the game. There will be opportunities for inter-class play in order to apply the skills and knowledge that are learned throughout the course.

The second program to be held during the month of May is a Saturday Morning Session for Grade School Girls. This will begin Saturday, May 5 and run through the 26th. The session will be divided into two one-half hour periods in order to more adequately meet the needs of the different age groups.

Girls in the primary grades, 1, 2 and 3, will meet from 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. This program will be concerned with movement exploration and will focus on developing greater overall physical fitness. Parachute activities, relays, small equipment and rhythms will be used in developing muscular strength, agility, flexibility, balance and coordination.

Girls in the intermediate grades, 4, 5, and 6, will meet from 10:30 a.m. to noon. This session will be aimed at providing a program of physical fitness through various group activities. Activities for the intermediate grades will consist of parachute games, newcomb ball, field hockey and deck tennis.

Linda has a Bachelor of Science Degree with a double major in areas of physical education and health education from Wilmington College, graduating in March 1973. Her college activities included intercollegiate volleyball and basketball for three years, chairman of women's intramural basketball program, basketball official for high school girls games, and intramurals for two years.

Linda's husband, Jim, is a teacher in the Circleville City Schools and junior high basketball coach.

Registrations are now being taken at the Pickaway County YMCA for the Junior High Girls Softball Clinic and the two physical activities classes for grade school girls.

Hedges Chapel Board Will Meet

Administrative board of Hedges Chapel United Methodist Church plans to meet 8:30 p.m. Wednesday at the church.

the Coliseum at the fairgrounds from 1 until 4 a.m. All arrangements, decorations, food and chaperones are provided by the parents' group. A live band will provide musical entertainment.

A letter was sent in March to parents of students who are juniors at CHS, asking for donations to support the After-Prom party, but response so far has been very slight.

Anyone who has not contributed is asked to send a donation, in any amount, to Paul Berrigan, 590 Garden Parkway.

Also the group is seeking volunteers to serve on committees and to head the clean-up committee. Chairmen to contact are: Lester Smith, chaperones; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Resler and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Milburn, decorations; Mrs. Robert Scherer and Mrs. Paul Berrigan, food; Paul Berrigan, finances; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Uland, band and publicity; Mrs. William Myers and Mrs. Lester Smith, prizes.

General chairman of the After-Prom is Mrs. James McGowan.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Dodging IRS Can Be Taxing

DEAR ABBY: My husband owns a very successful business. He is a devoted, faithful husband and a wonderful father. All my friends think I'm the luckiest woman in the world. I would be, if it weren't for the fact that I am terrified that my husband will go to prison for income tax evasion.

He hasn't paid any taxes in six years. At first he really didn't have the money at tax time. The next year he put off filing until it was too late. The third year he didn't need an excuse. Now he says he knows plenty of others who don't pay any taxes, so why should he?

I have talked to him until I'm blue in the face. Now he refuses to even discuss it.

Abby, I am worried sick that with the new computer system they will soon catch up with him. What can I do?

JANE DOE

DEAR JANE: If you can't talk some sense into his head, confide in your lawyer and ask him to. If he fesses up, the penalty will be considerably lighter than if the feds catch him.

DEAR ABBY: Listen to this. A friend of mine is pregnant and some of her friends are getting together to give her a baby shower. This woman is 44 years old, soon to be 45, and she has six children and is a grandmother to boot. (Her oldest is 23 and her youngest is 12.) I say it's ridiculous to give a shower for a woman this age. Some of my friends disagree with me. What do you say?

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: I see nothing ridiculous about it. On the contrary, I can't think of anyone who could use the lift more.

DEAR ABBY: This letter about "Jane," who was convinced that she should take care of her elderly father has haunted me.

I am 60, and God forbid any of my children should ever have to "take care" of me. I want my children to remember me as a strong person who is capable of taking care of himself. It would present all kinds of problems and I feel guilty.

Just give me a room in a good clean nursing home where I can have my own corner, forget responsibility and can be served without feelings that I'm imposing. I don't want to worry about illness, family quarrels, or the grandchildren's grades. I've been through all that. Give me peace.

Don't forget me, though. Call and write now and then. And invite me for Sunday dinner occasionally. Let me entertain you in my room. But please, don't try to "take care" of me. Let me retain some dignity in my old age.

GETTING THERE

DEAR ABBY: You goofed when you referred to the marriage of the 40-year-old nurse to a 22-year-old man as a "May December" marriage. It's scarcely September for us gals in our forties.

Oberlin's Litter Battle Goes Well

OBERLIN, Ohio (AP) — This northern Ohio city's year-old fight against the litter of nonreturnable drink containers is going well, reports City Manager Thomas Dalton.

Oberlin prohibited the sale or possession of non-returnable beer and soft drink containers about a year ago. Since then the city has required separation of paper from other trash, and has encouraged keeping glass and metal separate as well.

"You obviously see much fewer cans strewn about the streets," said Dalton. "The consensus of downtown merchants is that they see less and less of the metal and glass, and the trash just tends to be paper."

Dalton said the paper program made money, but the glass and metal program lost money.

"Overall," he said, "we're just about breaking even."

Paper, metal and glass are sold for recycling. Profit or loss is measured against the cost of collecting the trash items.

He said "some can people" conducted a study here recently and found results in their favor.

Court Hears Rhodes Bid Arguments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court Wednesday heard oral arguments on whether or not former Gov. James Rhodes can run for a third term under provisions of the state constitution.

The Ohio Constitution as amended in 1954 says no one "shall hold the office of governor for a period longer than two successive terms of four years."

Rhodes served two terms from 1962 to 1970. Earlier this year, he filed candidacy petitions with Secretary of State Ted Brown asking that he be placed on the May, 1974 primary ballot for a third term.

Brown refused, citing the constitutional amendment. Shortly afterward, Rhodes asked the Ohio Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus forcing Brown to allow his candidacy.

Rhodes' attorney, Larry H. Snyder, argued that the constitutional language was intended to mean only that no one could serve more than two terms in a row.

Snyder said the key word in the amendment was "period."

"It indicates that the limitation here is on the duration that this office can be held at any one time," Snyder said. "But there is no limit on the number of times it can be held."

Asst. Atty. Gen. Thomas V. Martin argued on Brown's behalf that if anyone had served two terms in a row, a third term at any time after that would in effect be "a period longer than two successive terms."

A Page Of Opinion

Faulting The Job

So much is being said and written about worker morale that more workers are likely to jump to the conclusion they no longer like their jobs. That is the danger some economists, union officials and others see in the constant stream of criticism concerning boredom and the American worker.

What started it is the recognition that not all is well on the assembly line. Some observers have pinpointed the problem as worker boredom, a feeling of repetitious uselessness on the assembly line. But others are not sure that is a correct evaluation. William W. Winpisinger, general vice chairman of the International Association of Machinists, for instance, has this to say:

"If you want to enrich the job, enrich the paycheck. The better the wage, the greater the job satisfaction. There is no better cure for the blue collar blues."

Others, pointing to job satisfaction and labor turnover surveys, say there is no evidence to indicate serious job dissatisfaction among the work force. At least not until someone mentions the subject. Then almost everyone can find something he or she does not like about the job.

The Herrnstein Case

By JEFFREY HART

According to friends of mine at Harvard, it is common knowledge on campus that since the publication of his article "I.Q." in the September, 1971 issue of the Atlantic Monthly, psychology professor R. J. Herrnstein has been subjected to constant harassment by campus radicals—his classroom invaded, hecklers ubiquitous, physical violence threatened, jostling in corridors, posters all over the place denouncing him as a racist, a fascist and so on.

All of this, as any teacher would realize, substantially crippled him as a teacher. As he now writes in a most disturbing article in the current issue of Commentary: "My colleague and I tried to deliver our lectures as normally as we could, but we were fighting a losing battle. The atmosphere in the room was hardly conducive to the business of education."

That much, indeed, I had gathered from conversations with colleagues at Harvard. But what emerges from the Commentary article is evidence of a more general collapse of academic integrity.

Now, it must be said emphatically—and it is said that at this late date it had to be said at all—that neither the "I.Q." article nor any other part of Herrnstein's work can fairly be called "racist."

The article begins with a scientific truism to the effect that I.Q. is in part, and perhaps in large part, inherited. It then goes on to make the interesting and speculative point that, this being so, a public policy of maximizing "equality of opportunity" for all individuals would also have the effect of maximizing the influence of the genetic factor on social status.

Herrnstein said nothing about race, and in fact he has repeatedly said that the relatively slow status of the blacks in contemporary America is not in his view the result of inheritable intelligence factors.

Yet all of this was swept away in a tide of irrationality. Herrnstein could not lecture at the University of Iowa on one rather esoteric subject—the learned responses of pigeons—or on another such topic at Princeton: visual perception in pigeons.

At Iowa, demonstrators from the entire region flooded the lecture hall. The walls "were festooned with placards denouncing me as racist, fascist, etc., and speakers were already addressing the crowd—warming them up. . . In the prep room, I asked the head of the campus police whether he could assure my safety if I went into the lecture hall. In effect, he said no."

With this experience under his belt, Herrnstein approached the Princeton engagement rather more tentatively. Campus radicals had been agitating there in advance. What measures did the university administration have in mind to assure not only decent conditions for a lecture but the physical safety of the speaker? As a matter of fact, none. "Except for the department chairman's avowed hope that I would be able to give my talk, the university administration was going to do nothing. While I had no reason to doubt the sincerity of the department chairman's avowed hopes, I considered them futile and therefore canceled my talk."

Princeton's President Goheen subsequently rebuked only some conservative students who were incensed that the university had not, at the very least, exercised some moral and professional leadership.

Herrnstein's conclusions are anything but reassuring. The liberal administrators he had to deal with, he found, were at least platonically committed to his right to give his lecture. The administrators, in private, freely conceded that nothing he had written was either racist or fascist. But, and the "but" is ominous, neither were they willing to defend a man who had been defamed by the radicals. In practical terms, they simply opted out. Herrnstein began "to see that between the radicals and the liberal intellectual community there was a more subtle connection than I had at first appreciated."

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

The federal government's offer of three-fourths of the $4.7 million toward financing our proposed sewage disposal plant is not a gift. It is simply a return to this community of some of our tax dollars.

At a time when it is being proposed that billions of this nation's tax dollars be spent on rehabilitating Vietnam, I think it about time we remind those in Washington that America's concern should be America.

Perhaps by doing so Roundtown just might get the entire cost of the disposal plant funded with federal money. There's nothing to lose by suggesting it.

I assume that most Circlevillians know where and to whom to write in Washington but will admit that the whereabouts of President Nixon may be hard to determine. In that new $12 million plane we taxpayers recently bought him he is constantly flying from White House to White House—all three of them. It's a mystery to me how he manages to find time to eat those peanut butter sandwiches that he is substituting for meat. I presume he is making the substitution since he suggested it for all the rest of us.

As to Nixon's knocking about in that new plane of his up there in the "wild blue yonder," something good may come from it after all. It may afford him the time and opportunity to give considerable thought to our threatening fuel shortage and the prospect of gas rationing.

Respectfully yours,
FRED BOWSER

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, April 19, the 108th day of 1973. There are 256 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1775, the American Revolution began with the battles of Lexington and Concord.

On this date:
In 1782, Holland recognized the independence of the American colonies.

In 1783, eight years after Lexington and Concord, Congress announced the end of the Revolutionary War.

In 1824, the English poet, Lord Byron, died in Greece in the fight for Greek independence.

In 1865, funeral services for Abraham Lincoln were held at the White House.

Also in 1865, Charles E. Duryea of Springfield, Mass., took a ride in his new car—said to be the first practical gasoline car in the United States.

In 1928, Japanese forces occupied the Chinese city of Shantung.

Ten years ago: Despite Soviet appeals, Spain said there would be no clemency for a Communist leader, Julian Grimau Garcia. He was executed by firing squad at dawn the next day.

Five years ago: The United States and European allies rejected a proposed antiballistic missile system for western Europe.

One year ago: The Soviet Union made public a note to the United States accusing American bombers of damaging four Soviet ships during attacks on Haiphong, North Vietnam.

Today's birthdays: Glenn T. Seaborg, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, is 61.

Thought for today: Human nature is not of itself vicious—Thomas Paine, political philosopher and author, 1737-1809.

Winter season returned in full force to Circleville and Pickaway County when a snowstorm, at times reaching blizzard proportions, left nearly a foot of snow in some areas and temperatures plunged to six degrees.

Pickaway County War Price and Rationing Board announced that butter, cooking fats and oils and most types of cheese would soon be rationed along with meat.

Frank (Bring 'Em Back Alive) Buck in "Jacare" and The Three Musketeers in "Valley of Hunted Men" was the twinbill at the Cliftona Theatre.

A quota of $1,611,000 was assigned to Pickaway County as its share of Uncle Sam's Second War Loan being collected to "Back Our Boys With Bonds".

Pickaway County's air raid warning signal system was given its first complete test in preparation for the upcoming county-wide blackout. Civilian Defense officials declared the system proved to be adequate.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

While sewing some curtains made out of fibre glass I developed a terrible itch and irritating redness of the hands.

Is it possible for someone to be allergic to this kind of material?

Mrs. H.H., Ind.

Dear Mrs. H.:

It is, of course, possible to be allergic to fibre glass as it is to almost every conceivable substance. The likelihood, however, is greater that tiny glass particles became embedded in your skin and caused the redness, the swelling, and the itching. This is not unusual.

Great care must be taken in handling this material while sewing or laundering, in order to prevent this reaction.

Dr. Robert R. Tompkins, of Camp Hill, Pa., has devised a simple way to remove particles of fibre glass. He uses nonallergic adhesive tape and applies it to the skin area that has been exposed to fibre glass material.

The tape is left on for 20 minutes to allow the fibre glass to become firmly embedded in the tape. When the tape is removed a soothing cortisone ointment is applied. The treatment is repeated if necessary.

Can stones be removed from the bladder without surgery?

Mr. T.E., R.I.

Dear Mr. T.:

Stones composed of calcium of uric acid and other minerals occasionally form in the urinary bladder.

Chronic infection of the urinary bladder, known as cystitis, may produce stones as large as a plum. Sometimes a small stone may pass from the kidney into the bladder, and there create further enlargement of the stone.

In older people, with problems of the prostate, urine may stagnate in the bladder because it is not completely emptied. This is another cause for stone formation.

There are no chemical ways to dissolve these stones. They are removed by opening surgically the bladder.

Another method, known as lithopaxy, breaks up the stones into small fragments which are then emptied out of the bladder. This is performed with a cystoscope which, too, is a surgical procedure.

Once these stones are removed, the reason for their formation must be found in order to avoid recurrence.

I have two sebaceous cysts on my scalp. Can these become cancerous?

Miss A.B., Fla.

Dear Miss B.:

These cysts, sometimes known as wens, occur on the scalp, but are also found on other parts of the body.

They never become cancerous. They are not dangerous. They can become troublesome if infected. Then they are more difficult to remove. For this reason it is wise to have these cysts removed promptly.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — "I don't think there's a limit on economic demand," said Peter Flanigan. Human need, he insisted, is never satisfied. "For me, for example, it's a place in the mountains and a boat and more."

Flanigan, who led the team that produced new trade proposals announced last week by President Nixon, was introducing what for him is another incontestable thesis: "The most effective way to meet demand is in free trade."

That notion isn't universally accepted. While trade advocates claim that $1 billion of exports produces 91,000 jobs, protectionist forces claim that imports might be destroying as many jobs — and industries too.

Flanigan, assistant to the President for international economic affairs, believes that free trade promotes the most efficient utilization of resources, including workers, and thus produces the lowest prices. But, he adds, trade today isn't free.

Europe wants to protect its less efficiently grown crops from American exports. Japan seeks to protect its computer industry. And some Americans would like to restrain imports of shoes that are produced at lower cost abroad.

The thrust of the President's approach to world trade negotiations that begin in September, Flanigan suggested in an interview, is to promote more open and equitable trade as the underpinning of international economic expansion, a bonus of which would be to give many nations a vested interest in world peace.

It begins with the assumption that needless frictions exist because of existing inequities. "There is a fundamental imbalance in the system," Flanigan said. "It was put in place after World War II when we had all the chips. Our priority was to rebuild, and we were overly generous."

As other nations or groups of nations regained their competitiveness, the need to change the monetary and trading systems grew evident. Other nations could devalue their currencies, for example, but not the United States.

The old monetary order has now been challenged and buried. The United States has now devalued and thus, in theory, made its goods more competitive in world markets. But the United States still feels sinned against in trade.

Nixon's bill, called the Trade Reform Act of 1973, calls for a reduction of trade barriers if other nations are willing to lower theirs, one purpose being to bring exports, which totaled $48.8 billion last year, closer to the import figure of $55.7 billion.

Will this deficit be erased by the President's proposals?

"I don't know," said Flanigan. "We're not going into the negotiations with the idea of getting a surplus." That, he suggested, might take care of itself.

Among the bargaining tools sought by the President is unlimited authority to raise, lower or eliminate tariffs, and the authority to retaliate against what are perceived to be inequities imposed against American goods.

This proposal was widely referred to in the press as "unprecedented and sweeping," but Flanigan insists it is not. Similar rights were granted the President under the 1962 Trade Expansion Act, he said.

"Phony charge," is how he described that accusation. "It emerged because of the confrontation of the President with Congress. We are not seeking sweeping new power. We are asking for authority given in the past, to reflect the new experiences."

The second major aspect of the proposals, the right to restrain imports for five years so as to protect certain American industries, has also been criticized as an attempted usurpation of power. But Flanigan notes that Congress retains its veto.

"It's a hell of a matter to go negotiations with fewer chips than the other guy," he said, referring to the broad powers held by negotiators for some other nations.

They'll Do It Every Time

Drop In Income Ends Good Living

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Bob Connors used to own a twin-engine, 30-foot boat, buy new cars every other year, and dine out on steak three times a week.

Now, the boat has been sold, they're still driving their 1967 station wagon with 112,000 miles, and a $6 barbecue dinner once a month is a special treat. Connor, 36, a furniture salesman, father of five children with four teenagers living at home, had been living the good life and his only thought was that it would get better. But then he lost his job and the subsequent 30 per cent drop in family income disrupted his dreams. Adding to the problem were the rising costs in living and the expensive tastes acquired over the years.

The Connors are facing their first real financial bind.

"I'm desperately concerned," said Connor, a balding man of medium build. "The only thing that keeps me going is that I still have a few years ahead of me and maybe things will pick up for us again."

He used to earn about $19,000 as an assistant manager at a large furniture store in Houston. His wife, Dolores, brought in another $6,000 for secretarial and accounting work.

Their four-bedroom Spanish-style house on the outskirts of Houston is still decorated with touches of their more affluent days. There are several sets of Mediterranean furniture, thick shag rugs and six-foot plastic flowering plants.

"We paid cash for everything and there wasn't anything I couldn't buy if I wanted it," said Dee, a lively, petite blonde. Daughters Nancy, Paula and Theresa took modeling lessons, Jay and Butch were active in the town sports programs. The family exchanged $1,000 worth of gifts at Christmas. The Connors had all they wanted and about two years ago Dee quit her job so she could be home for the children.

Then, last year, Bob left his job for a combination of personal reasons and pressures on his firm due to increased competition. He took another sales position paying about $13,000.

Everything seemed to fall apart at the same time.

There were three operations in the family and $5,000 in medical bills and no insurance to cover them. Payments on the boat, the furniture, the freezer started to pile up. Food prices, taxes, insurance rates all went up as well.

Now, the Connors are several thousand dollars in debt.

In an effort to get clear, Bob sold the boat. "That was so depressing," said Bob grimacing. "I really felt I'd had my day."

The Connors next sold their mutual funds and withdrew all their savings. They applied for two loans, and considered selling the house to move into an apartment. Dee went back to work part time as free-lance secretary and real estate sales person.

The penny-pinching and scraping to get by began.

Botanical Garden In Prague Is 75

PRAGUE (AP) — Prague's Botanical Garden harboring some 10,000 plants on a 3.5-hectare plot will celebrate its 75th anniversary this year.

Dee supported this month's meat boycott, but then the Connors had not been eating much beef the last few months. The huge freezer they still owe money for is empty. Dee used to buy tenderloins for the family for $10. She can't afford to spend that much now, and besides that same cut of beef has gone up to $13. Their grocery bill is about $50 a week, which is about what it was two years ago, says Dee, but then there were steaks in the shopping bags as well.

Family meals consist of lots of chicken, chili, lasagna and spaghetti. Bob has gone from 135 to 170 pounds in the last year. "It's probably because I quit smoking, but it sure must have something to do with all that starchy stuff we have to eat, too."

The Connors talk wistfully about "the good old days" when things were "flush."

"We took a fantastic vacation once to Colorado with the children. We charged everything and had $1,300 in traveler's checks. Now, we can't even afford to go to Corpus Christi," says Dee.

They still have American Express and Carte Blanche charge cards but keep them only for future days. There are no new clothes or spending money for the children, and gone are the days when they could give 14-year-old Butch a custom-made surfboard.

"I consider buying a magazine a form of entertainment," says Dee, who picks up her monthly Cosmopolitan at the stands and has kept up her subscriptions to Reader's Digest, National Geographic, Bon Appetit and Vintage, a gourmet wine magazine to satisfy her epicurean tastes. Dee is fascinated by French wines, knows the best year for Nuits St. Georges, but the only bottle on the kitchen shelves now is Italian Swiss Colony for cooking.

Dee, a smart dresser, is partial to name designers for herself and her daughters, one of whom made the best-dressed list at school.

She was used to spending several thousand on clothes but today she can't remember when she last bought a dress.

Both Dee and Bob have to drive more than a half hour to work. Keeping up the station wagon and the 1970 Pontiac is an $80 month expense they have to cope with. But they have started to use the selfservice gas stations. A gallon of gas is 10 cents cheaper there.

Some pleasures are hard to give up, no matter what the cost. "We bought a dog the children all loved only to discover it was allergic to fleas," said Dee. "Well, you don't just get rid of the dog. So we have to spend about $30 for cortisone shots twice a year."

It's important to Dee to look good. "You've got to present yourself well to the world. I don't want to look like some tacky, dumb housewife and no matter how tough things get, I won't give up my make-up and false eyelashes."

Dee easily spent $40 a month for bleaching her hair, but has been using that money to pay off the furniture. She wears wigs every day so she doesn't have to go to the beauty parlor for a set. There was a time when she owned about 20 wigs, but they've long since been sold and she's down to three.

"What I miss most," said Dee, "is not being able to go into a department store and buy what I want. Once if I saw a beautiful set of crystal glasses, I just handed the saleslady $100 and walked out with a box. I haven't bought anything that wasn't an absolute necessity in months."

Bob says he'd really like to have his own furniture store some day. But that requires lots of capital. For a time the

MR. AND MRS. PHILIP GRISSO

Marriage Vows Are Exchanged

Miss Linda Dollison and Mr. Philip Grisso were united in marriage 2:30 p.m. Feb. 17th at First Church of Christ in Christian Union, E. Ohio St., Circleville. The Rev. H. David Cyrus performed the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Dollison, 221 Walnut St., Circleville, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Grisso, Springfield.

Vases of white and pink pompons and daisies were arranged on the altar railing and two-seven-branch candelabra were on either side of the platform. The communion table held a cross decorated with gladiolus and daisies, and a Bible. The pews were marked with light and deep pink bows and ivy.

Mrs. Neil Frazier, organist and Mr. Willard Peters, vocalist, presented a program preceding the ceremony. Selections included: "Each For The Other," "Savior Like A Shepherd Lead Us," "Whither Thou Goest" and "At This Altar." As the couple received Holy Communion during the ceremony, "Blest Feast Of Love Divine" was sung.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, selected for her wedding a floor length empire gown of opaque polyester crepe with an attached semi-cathedral length train. The ruffled V-neckline and the shepherdess sleeves were trimmed with bands of cotton Venice lace. Her plateau designed headpiece of lace and beading held an elbow length silk illusion veil. She carried a Bible topped with a bouquet of white snow crystal pompons and pink sweetheart roses.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Sue Allen, was attired in a floor length gown of strawberry acetate satin with a full skirt and long lantern sleeves. The neckline, sleeves and bodice of the gown were trimmed with bands of polyester lace. Her double tiered veil of matching illusion was held by a triple satin bow.

Bridesmaid, Miss Sue Knece and bridesmatron, Mrs. Larry Whaley, were gowned as the honor attendant in rose. The attendants carried Bibles topped with bouquets of light and deep pink snow crystal pompons with long streamers. The guest register was attended by Mrs. James Brewer, sister of the bridegroom.

Flower girl, Miss Michele Dollison, niece of the bride, was dressed as the attendants and carried a basket of rose petals.

Mr. James Payne of Union, Ohio, served his friend as best man. Mr. Dave Eshelman, Mr. Tom Taylor, Mr. Edward Myers and Mr. James Brewer, brother-in-law of the groom, seated the guests.

Mrs. Dollison was attired in a street length dress of rose double knit with black accessories. Mrs. Grisso wore a royal blue crepe street length dress with black accessories. The mothers wore matching shoulder corsages of pink sweetheart roses.

A reception was held at the Service Center of Good Shepherd United Methodist Church. Garlands of carnations, ribbon and greenery formed a pathway leading up to the serving table centered with a four tiered wedding cake topped with two wedding bells inside a heart. Surrounding the cake were pink pompons and greenery. Flanking the cake were vases of pompons and double branch candelabra with pink tapers. Behind the table was an ivy covered arch with a spray of orchid, pink, white and yellow pompons and heather arranged at the top.

Hostesses were: Mrs. Willard Peters, Mrs. Neil Frazier, Mrs. Harry Richards, sister of the groom, Mrs. James Dollison and Mrs. Bob Dollison, sisters-in-law of the bride.

For a wedding trip to Cincinnati, the bride wore a navy blue double knit dress. The couple now resides at 307 1/2 S. Court St. in Circleville.

The new Mrs. Grisso graduated from Circleville High School and is employed by Dr. H. H. Shuttleworth. Mr. Grisso graduated from God's Bible School and Cedarville College. He is employed by radio station WPKO in Waverly.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Indiana, Waverly, Springfield, Union, South Charleston, Washington C.H. and Tarlton.

A rehearsal dinner, hosted by the bridegroom's parents was held the evening preceding the wedding.

Ladies Aid Society 1896 Minutes Read To Martha Circle

Minutes of the Ladies Aid Society beginning in 1896 were read as the program for the Monday evening meeting of Martha Circle, Community United Methodist Church, in the home of Mrs. William Cook, Park Place.

Miss Marie Hamilton, program chairman, read the minutes which had been given to Mrs. Minnie Bales by Brunelle Downing. They were formerly in the possession of Mrs. Downing's mother.

According to the minutes the first Prayer Meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Church was held in 1896 to raise money for repairs to the church. Mrs. W. B. Haswell was voted as the first president in February of that year.

Dues were established at 5c per member each month and a chairman was appointed for each ward. This person would go to the homes and collect the dues.

Concerts and dinners were held with the price per person for these functions 15c. According to the minutes they were successful and many repairs were paid for by these activities.

Miss Hamilton read the minutes through the years up to 1899 with many well known names appearing in the reports as very active members.

During the business meeting reports of committees were made and volunteer workers recruited for the Fellowship Dinner planned for May 3rd. Martha Circle will be in charge of decorations using the dinner theme of "Paper Doll People."

Refreshments were served to the 16 members present by Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Glyn Hoover, Mrs. John Magill and Mrs. Fred McGlone.

The next meeting will be held May 21st in the home of Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, 322 S. Pickaway St.

Variety meats — liver, brains, kidney, heart and sweetbreads — are especially rich in food value and they add variety to family menus.

PROCLAMATION — Mrs. Sharon Reese and Mrs. Jennie Russell, president of Roundtown Chapter NSA are shown with proclamation received from Mayor Frank Barnhill.

Secretaries Week

Proclaimed By

Mayor Barnhill

Mayor of Circleville, Frank E. Barnhill, has officially proclaimed the week of April 23-28 as Secretaries Week with Wednesday designated as Secretaries Day.

Jennie Russell, chapter president said "Although NSA officially sponsors Secretaries Week, observance is not limited to our members alone, but to all secretaries everywhere who are an indispensable and integral part of management's administrative team in business, industry, education and professions and government."

"Better Secretaries Mean Better Business" is the theme for the 22nd annual Secretaries Week and among the events to be sponsored by the local NSA chapter during this week, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Sharon Reese will be: Breakfast for the Boss on Wednesday, 7:45 a.m. at the Mecca Restaurant and a seminar at noon Saturday at the L-K Restaurant.

Secretary of the Year will be voted on at the Wednesday breakfast.

Lecture Series

Program Planned

An Ohio State University student organization "The Strollers," will enact Eugene Ionesco's one act play, "The Bald Soprano" at the 11th annual Lillian Dougherty Lecture 8 p.m., Tuesday in the Nicholas Drive School auditorium.

This lecture series is sponsored by the Circleville Branch, American Association of University Women in honor of Mrs. Dougherty who was one of the organizers of the branch. Members and guests are cordially invited.

The dramatic society has a membership of students who are not drama majors but enjoy putting on plays for the fun of it. Only one faculty member, Dr. Mark Auburn, is involved as adviser. Dr. Auburn will come to the meeting to explain the play and the Theater of the Absurd Movement which it represents. He will also be available to answer questions after the play.

Members of the cast include Dale Hruska, Julia Joliat, John Madigan, Jaci Glynn, Merle Ouden, Kathie Walk and the student director, John Manning.

Auxiliary Plans

Go-Kart Races

Ladies Auxiliary of the Scioto Twp. Volunteer Fire Department held its monthly meeting recently at the home of Frankie Parmenter.

Further plans were made for the 5th annual go-kart street races to be held in Commercial Point on June 2nd and 3rd. The Auxiliary is requesting that any organization in Pickaway County that would be interested in some of the money making projects during the races to contact Sophie Wilkins, secretary, 877-4112 after 6 p.m.

Don Thrasher, Fire Chief, attended the meeting and announced that the new cupboards and new sink have been installed in the kitchen at the fire house. The cupboards were purchased by the Ladies Auxiliary and the sink was donated by the Philathea Club.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Eileen Gillette on May 9th.

Guild 47 Plans

Dinner Meeting

Berger Hospital Guild 47 has scheduled a dinner meeting for 6:30 p.m. April 28th at the Valley House in Chillicothe.

The drama will be presented six days a week, Tuesday through Sunday, through Sept. 2.

Tickets at group prices may be obtained from Lee Kenton, whose telephone number in Chillicothe is 614-773-1572 and 614-457-6594 in Columbus. Tickets will be mailed upon receipt of money orders or checks.

Further information may be obtained from the box office in Chillicothe. Telephone number for the box office is 615-774-2600. The box office will be open weekday mornings only through June 1, 1973, after which time it will be open all day.

"Tecumseh!" portrays the life and death of the great Shawnee Indian chief. The drama is based upon "The Frontiersman," one of four of playwright Allan Eckert's writings to win a Pulitzer Prize nomination.

Crackdown Set On Calls

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio Bell Telephone Co. announced Wednesday it is getting tough with college students who give false credit card numbers to make long distance calls.

Until now the company has merely asked for payment and has not prosecuted youths making such calls, an Ohio Bell spokesman said, because of the "permanent damaging effect a conviction for fraud would have on their future careers."

But the decision to crack down was made because the practice has been growing, the spokesman said.

He said about $5,000 worth of illegal phone calls are made each month from the Ohio State University campus in Columbus and about $25,000 a month around the state.

Persons convicted of using false credit card numbers could be jailed for up to six months and fined up to $500.

Set Shakeup In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — President Lon Nol has bowed to U.S. pressure and agreed to bring some of his opponents into the Cambodian government in an attempt to get cease-fire negotiations started with the Communists.

"I will choose a new prime minister to lead the government with the participation of the opposition," the 59-year-old chief of the embattled Phnom Penh regime said in a broadcast Tuesday night.

Lon Nol said he would also appoint a new 11-man council of political advisers to include opposition Republicans and Democrats as well as members of his own Social Republican party.

Authoritative sources said Lon Nol agreed to broaden the government under pressure from President Nixon, who sent the vice chief of staff of the U.S. Army, Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., to Cambodia last week to assess the current Communist threat to Phnom Penh.

U.S. officials in Washington were hopeful that Lon Nol would turn the government over to his former associate, Sisowath Sirik Matak, who is a relative of the deposed chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, and that Sirik Matak could get Sihanouk's supporters in the Khmer Rouge guerrilla army to the conference table.

But political observers in Phnom Penh said no matter who Lon Nol brings in, the Khmer Rouge won't negotiate so long as Lon Nol and his younger brother and chief adviser, Brig. Gen. Lon Non, retain control of the government.

Chavez Asks For Help In Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm-worker union leader Cesar Chavez planned an appeal to George Meany today for AFL-CIO help in stopping the Teamsters union from taking over field worker contracts in California.

Chavez has accused the growers and the Teamsters of collusion in attempts to crush the United Farm Workers Union.

He also charged in a news conference Tuesday that lettuce growers had made illegal payoffs to the Teamsters from 1971 through early 1972 to finance "goon squads" to harass farmworker organizers.

Chavez, founder and now chief of the UFW, said he will ask Meany to denounce the Teamsters activities in Coachella Valley where, last weekend, they said they had assigned contracts with 30 of the 32 grape growers who had had contracts with Chavez' union.

About 90 per cent of the workers struck the vineyards, Chavez said, but "green carders"—Mexican workers who cross into the United States on daily permits—are massed at the border to replace the strikers.

"The Teamsters are trying to destroy our union," Chavez said. "The Teamsters union in farm labor is nothing but a company union that makes sweetheart contracts with growers."

The Trial Of Jesus Of Nazareth

EDITOR'S NOTE. This is the fourth installment of a five-part Easter series about Pontius Pilate, the Roman governor who judged Jesus. In this episode, the biblical account is projected against the historical background of Pilate's typically manipulative methods.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

From his elevated, portable seat, the "sella," Pontius Pilate looked down on the manacled prisoner and intoned, "Are you the king of the Jews?" It was the formal opening of a Roman trial in which the suspect was asked to plea to the charge against him.

In this case, Jesus of Nazareth was accused of "crimen laesae majestatis," injury to the majesty of the Roman emperor by illegally claiming to be king in territory of the empire. It was high treason.

"You have said so," he replied, a common Hebrew circumlocution that may be either noncommittal or imply acknowledgement.

Thus, in about 29 A.D., began a judicial proceeding of immeasurable consequences. It has stirred emotions and controversy ever since. No trial in history has left so large an impact on human consciousness.

It is the stark monument to the memory of Pilate, deputy of the emperor Tiberius, governor of the imperial province of Judea, empowered with the "ius gladii," the right of the sword to hold the Jews in subjugation.

That he set forth the specific allegation at the outset indicates his prior familiarity with the case and reasons for acting on it.

But the biblical accounts also depict a raucous "multitude" clamoring for execution while a seemingly prudent governor hesitates to order it, an impression easily contrived with his Temple collaborators, and of which the accounts give evidence.

"The chief priests stirred up the crowd," Mark reports. They "persuaded the multitude," John writes.

Such a maneuver squares with the designing, yet severe and domineering character of Pilate displayed in other events of his administration, along with his habitual manipulations to curry favor with the emperor in pursuit of advancement.

Biblical scholars also point out that the gospels were compiled in a subsequent period when Christianity was illegal, under persecution by the empire, and to avoid fanning the flames of peril, the writers would tend to mitigate the Roman prefect's role.

In any case, the undefined "multitude" could have been only a tiny handful of Jerusalem's festival-swollen population — more than a million according to ancient historian Josephus — and even the small pro-Roman clique on hand remained outside the walled court area.

"They themselves did not enter the praetorium," John's gospel says, referring to the enclosed, tessellated pavement where Pilate held court. The heathen Roman compound was considered defiling to Jews.

Those present, idlers and other factotums under influences of the nearby Temple's Sadducean officialdom controlled by Rome, must have merely clogged the eight-foot gateway, a knot of sensation-seekers egged on to shout for a hanging.

"We found this man perverting our nation, and forbidding us to give tribute to Caesar, and saying that he himself is Christ a king," inciters of the group said. "He stirs up the people."

Pilate leaned back with satisfaction. The high priest, Caiaphas, installed by Rome as serviceable to its rule, obviously had done his job of making it appear the natives wanted a conviction, that they even respected Caesar, despite the actual Jewish loathing for Roman rule.

It was a splendid ploy, Pilate realized, and also mutually self-protective both for Caiaphas and Pilate, especially after that rebuke the governor had received from Tiberius for being too arbitrarily roughshod. This subtler technique should mollify the emperor.

The governor smoothed the purple hem of his toga, gazing indifferently at the prisoner. "Have you no answer to make? See how many charges they bring against you." The man didn't reply.

Pilate pursed his lips, vaguely puzzled. Usually these culprits scream out their innocence, but this was a cool one. To provide further semblance of his own impartiality, Pilate dangled the idea of holiday amnesty for one prisoner, saying:

"Whom do you want me to release for you, Bar-rabas, or Jesus who is called the Christ?" The jails bulged with rebels and bandits, but special pains had been taken to trap this one on trial, and the bystanders, by the biblical record, were officially coached in their answer.

"Bar-rabas," they shot back. That should clinch it, Pilate assumed, definitely making it look as if the vox populi disowned this dangerously cryptic Jesus, although actually the common Jews so adored him that his arrest had to be in secret.

That popular affection shown by pressing throngs from the moment Jesus entered the city, also had caused Pilate and his cohorts to set the trial just after daybreak before the public was aware of it.

"It was early," John writes, so early that the entire affair — which included a delaying march across town to let Herod Antipas, Rome's tetrarch of Galilee, twist the prisoner — was over and Jesus already was on the cross by the third hour — 9 a.m.

That extraordinary timing, given in Mark 15:25, reveals the deliberate haste to circumvent a public outcry. Other prisoners languished in cells indefinitely before trial or execution, but Jesus was rushed through it feverishly within hours of his midnight arrest.

Cooperating Temple officials such as Caiaphas, owing their positions to Pilate, evidently had rounded up employees and loiterers to stage the early-morning calls for conviction before ordinary worshippers arrived in the area.

Tradition locates the praetorium at the Tower of Antonia, adjacent to the Temple.

That Pilate himself would be waiting at such an early hour to pass judgment on the case strongly demonstrates his engineering of it. Also, the Temple priests would hardly have been there on their busiest Passover day except under compulsion. It was Pilate's timetable.

"Then what shall I do with Jesus who is called Christ?" He put the question, knowing the answer before it came back.

"Let him be crucified."

As the heartless game continued, a clerical "apparitor" of the court handed Pilate a note. "Have nothing to do with that righteous man, for I have suffered much over him today in a dream." It came from his wife, Procula.

The governor scowled, annoyed at her introspective nature, investing mere dreams with the ominous reality of revelations. She had a perverse religious streak, even considering the Jewish idea of one divinity more sensible than Rome's multiplicity of gods.

Pilate had no use for either, except for the professional expedience of burning incense to Tiberius. Then he recalled how Calpurnia, wife of Julius Caesar, warned him because of a dream not to go to the forum on the day of his assassination.

Discomfited, Pilate stood up and headed into his adjacent office, signalling the guards to bring the prisoner. There in the privacy of his curtained chamber, behind the "velum" door hanging, he gave play to momentary curiosity. "What have you done?"

Jesus, eyeing him levelly despite his bruises and a sleepless night of interrogation, said, "My kingship is not of this world. If my kingship were of this world, my servants would fight."

This nettled Pilate, and he resumed his condescending tone, "So you are a king?"

Irony flickered in Jesus gaze. "You say that I am a king. For this I was born, and for this I have come into the world, to bear witness to the truth."

Pilate arched his brows, snorting, "What is truth?" The interview was over. He snapped his "vitius" staff on the table and directed the guards to scourge the prisoner.

In the Roman "flagellatio," condemned prisoners were flogged with a whip tipped with bone and metal before crucifixion. The troops took their time at it, and afterward draped Jesus with a scarlet sash, a woven crown of thorns and put a reed in his hand for a mock scepter.

"Hail, King of the Jews!" they taunted, laughing.

The outcome was settled, but Pilate allowed some final touches to the act after the lacerated prisoner was shoved back in front of the tribunal. "Here is the man," the governor said cynically of the weakened, bleeding Jesus. "I find no crime in him."

The troopers chuckled. The crowd reacted with mechanical deference to Rome. "If you release this man, you are not Caesar's friend. Every one who makes himself a king sets himself against Caesar." It was a line fit for Tiberius himself.

Pilate, jealous of his acceptance into the emperor's intimate circle of official friends as "amici Caesaris," retaliated by goading his trained seals, "Shall I crucify your King?" "Crucify him! . . . We have no king but Caesar."

It was utterly absurd, but neatly managed politics. The Jews hated Roman domination, regarded the empire as licentious, sensualist, tyrannical, abhorred its state gods, plotted against its tax tribute, mounted unceasing revolts against it, hurled their daily maledictions whenever they passed the Roman garrison of Antonia.

No place on earth was the empire so implacably despised. "To the Jews all things are profane that we hold dear," wrote the ancient Roman historian Tacitus. Their revered Torah, in Deuteronomy 17:15, decreed: "You must not put a foreigner over you." To them this was holy ground, God's ground, and Rome's alien rule polluted it.

However, Pilate needed his outward show of support to condemn Jesus, who gripped the hearts and hopes of so many ordinary Jews, and the governor had the power to line up his chorus.

Pilate, savoring his supremacy over the situation, offered a final bit of theatrics. Taking a bowl of water, he rinsed his hands in it, saying, "I am innocent of this man's blood."

But in the end, only he could render the verdict. He could have acquitted Jesus, and by the record, it was never his nature to accede to popular demands. But in this case, he needed a pretense of it.

Now, after the spectacle, he wrote out the official "titulus qui causam poenae indicat," specifying the convicted man's offense and reason for his punishment, so spectators would be aware of the fate of its perpetrators.

The inscription read, "The King of the Jews." In Roman eyes, as Pilate judged it, Jesus threatened the might and suzerainty of Caesar, an aspiring "king" in treason to the empire.

He stirred so much life in the poor, so much courage in the persecuted, so much health and gladness in the ordinary people of the land that he was deemed unsafe to the masters of the world.

The chief priests complained, "Do not write, 'The King of the Jews,' but 'This man said, I am king of the Jews.'"

Pilate snapped, "What I have written, I have written." He pointed his "vitius" staff at the prisoner, and with military crispness, gave the order to the execution detail. "Crucify him."

Personal Income Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Personal income in the United States rose $6.7 billion in March and for the first time exceeded $1 trillion at an adjusted annual rate, the Commerce Department reported Wednesday.

The March increase meant Americans were receiving personal income at an annual rate of $1,001.2 billion, or slightly more than $1 trillion, if income receipts stayed at the March level throughout the remainder of the year.

The annual personal income rate in February was $994.5 billion.

The Commerce Department said wage and salary disbursements rose $5.7 billion in March, the same as in February, with factory payrolls up by $1.8 billion.

It said the March gains in payrolls was due to higher employment and higher average hourly earnings. Most industries showed small to moderate payroll gains, with the biggest increases in machinery, lumber, furniture, apparel and chemicals.

The figures are seasonally adjusted, which means that normal seasonal variations have been taken into effect in reporting the trends.

Canada's first motor vehicle is believed to have been an electric car built in 1893 by the Dixon Carriage Works at Toronto.

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

When does a girl reach the "dangerous age"? There could be many answers to that question. Most girls would probably say they are there now, no matter what their age. Many of the fiction writers whose stories are for the eleven-to fourteen-year-old readers believe that is the dangerous, and probably the most important, age for a young girl. That is her time to grow, to wonder, and to express her emotions.

What happens when a young girl at this vital age must move to a new home? Each of the following three books begins with that situation, and each shows the effects of it upon the girl.

Margaret Simon, girl number one, is an eleven year old going on twelve who doesn't seem to think she will even grow up. Margaret's family is moving from their apartment in New York City to a house in suburban New Jersey. The thought of moving to the suburbs doesn't trouble Margaret half as much as her questions about herself. This book would do a very good job of making any eleven year old girl realize that her emotions and fears are really quite normal. Judy Blume wrote this book, and it is entitled, "Are You There, God? It's Me, Margaret".

"The Four Story Mistake" is a house; a very unusual house with three stories and a cupola. It sat in the countryside, concealing its secretive stories and mysteries for many years. Mona and Randy Melendy and their family of two brothers, a father, and a maid moved in on a rainy autumn afternoon. Through an interesting series of events, that family was soon expanded by the addition of a horse, a goat, two dogs, three snakes, and an alligator. This story was written by the Newberry Award-Winning Author, Elizabeth Enright. It should not be overlooked by any young reader who enjoys adventure and nostalgia.

"Look Through My Window" by Jean Little is very much like "The Four-Story Mistake". The same elements are present here; the big house, the young girl, and the large family with a lot of love. These authors seem to have a good understanding of the problems and needs of a young girl, and how she reacts to family situations. The girl in this book is Emily Blair. Like Margaret, Mona, and Randy, Emily is finding ways to cope with her unusual life.

Now, girls, are you tired of being told you have problems? Would you rather raise your fist in the air and shout, "I am not a confused, emotional child; I am woman!" We have a book for you, too. "Women's Rights" by Janet Stevenson begins with the theory that no nation can rise above the level of its womanhood, and goes on to prove it. Eventually, most eleven-year-old girls turn into very strong, self-assured, twenty-one year-old women. Maybe that is the dangerous age!

Sales Tax Collections Are Higher

Sales tax collections in Pickaway County during March totaled $57,515.02 according to a report from the office of Gertrude Donahey, treasurer of the state of Ohio.

This is $10,128.57 or 21.37 per cent more than collected during March of 1972. Collections for the fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1972, to date are $651,766.14 compared to $563,022.66 for a similar period a year ago.

Motor vehicle tax collections were down slightly during March, $63,778.73 compared to $64,431.72 in 1972. However, collections for the entire fiscal year are up from $459,660.79 for the 1971-72 year to $514,806.29 for the current year.

As Low As

Lagging A's Upset Royals, 7-6

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

For today, baseball fans, a few introductions.

Over here, wearing the mustaches and funny colored uniforms, are the Oakland A's. Call them World Champions. No, no, forget the American League standings and the 3-6 record. They are the World Champions.

Over there, wearing the smiles and confident looks, are the Kansas City Royals, sitting atop the AL West. They are smiling because of an 8-3 record.

Kansas City in first place and Oakland in fifth. Charley Finley, owner of the A's, could be excused for wondering just what's going on here.

Kennedy Backed Up By Board

NEW YORK (AP) — The John Brisker affair is settled, with the struggling Philadelphia 76ers getting some much-needed draft choices and Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the National Basketball Association, getting the backing of his Board of Governors.

The Brisker matter involving Philadelphia and Seattle was settled Wednesday night following a nine-hour meeting, which because of its length caused the second postponement of the NBA's college draft.

The draft originally was set for last Monday, then today and now will be held next Tuesday.

When the NBA draft is held, Philadelphia, which had the worst record in the league this past season, will not only have the first pick of the first round but also will have a bonus pick which will be made after the 17 regular first-round selections.

The board also ruled that the signing of Brisker will cost Seattle $10,000 and its secondround choices in the draft this year and in the 1974 draft, which will go to Philadelphia.

The special session of the 17-member board took place after a court had overturned Kennedy's original ruling in the matter.

Old Mark To Fall

During Ohio Relays?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bob Epskamp, the host coach, predicts 10 records will fall in the Ohio State Track Relays Friday and Saturday, including the second oldest on the books.

"There's no limit to where records in track will go," Epskamp said on the eve of the event that has drawn 1,200 trackmen from 70 teams in 10 states this time.

Red China Displays

Basketball Prowess

PARIS (AP) — The People's Republic of China, with a 6-foot-10, 250-pound center and a couple of deadeye guards, showed France why Chairman Mao likes basketball.

A mainland China team beat the Frenchmen 89-86 Wednesday night in the first game of a long European tour.

"They said they wanted to learn from us," said the French coach, Joe Jaunay. "I think we have something to learn from them."

This could develop into an identification crisis.

Just to make sure their identities don't get too confused, Finley's mustached men turned the tables on the Royals Wednesday using a familiar weapon—a Gene Tenace home run—to take a 7-6 victory from Kansas City.

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday, the New York Yankees rallied for a 7-4 victory over Baltimore, California edged Minnesota 3-2, Chicago edged Texas 6-5, Detroit defeated Boston 7-1 and Milwaukee shut out Cleveland 4-0.

The Royals gave the snazzydressed A's a scare. Kansas City wiped out an early 4-0 lead on a three-run homer by Ed Kirkpatrick and a solo shot by Cookie Rojas.

Then an error by Oakland catcher Ray Fosse allowed two unearned runs to score and the World Champions were trailing. Fosse's single made it 6-5 in the seventh and then Tenace, last year's World Series hero, straightened out the identity crisis with his ninth inning homer following a leadoff single by Reggie Jackson.

The Yankees delivered some ninth inning thunder of their own with a pair of two-run homers by Thurman Munson and Felipe Alou carrying them to their victory over Baltimore.

Detroit unloaded on Fenway Park's close-in left field fence with Al Kaline, Willie Horton and Ed Brinkman all smacking home runs and Jim Perry coasting on the long-ball offense with a five-hitter to defeat Boston.

Minnesota's Bert Blyleven must have figured he had Frank Robinson's number. He struck out California's designated hitter the first three times he faced him in the Twins' game against the Angels. On his fourth trip to the plate, Robinson got even with a 410-foot home run that gave Nolan Ryan his third straight victory.

Dick Allen stroked a home run, double and triple, driving in four runs as Chicago defeated Texas. That gave the White Sox' slugger 12 hits, eight of them for extra bases, in 32 at bats this season.

Skip Lockwood and Jim Colborn combined for Milwaukee's six-hit shutout of Cleveland. Lockwood surrendered all of the Indian hits before Colborn took over in the sixth.

The Brewers protected a onerun lead until the eighth when a three-run rally put the game away.

Reeds Pence Wins Lebanon Feature

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Reeds Pence won its third race in five starts Wednesday night with a three-length triumph in the $1,000 feature at Lebanon Raceway.

The 4-year-old bay paid $5.40, $2.60 and $2.40 in turning in a time of 2:12 4-5 on a slow track.

Peoples Choice was second, returning $3.20 and $2.60. Angeles Crystal showed at $3.40.

Bells Chance and Our Count, 2-4, returned $50.80 on the daily double. The combination of 5-4 paid $213.60 on the Perfecta.

Canada's first settlers relied on wildlife—deer, fish, fowl, buffalo and rabbits—for their meat needs.

Turner-Slagle Meeting Slated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A May tenth meeting has been set for 9:30 a.m. for the state Senate Select Committee studying the disputed 26th District Senate election involving Sen. Gene Slagle, D-36 Galion and former Sen. Robin Turner, a Marion Republican.

The two candidates have been asked to submit a list of options open to the committee for dealing with the election in which Slagle, who holds his seat on a provisional basis, beat Turner by 152 votes last November.

Turner contends the Marion County results should be declared void because the names of the two candidates were not rotated on the ballot as the law requires. He also wants a new election ordered.

Electronic Eye Installed In Mines

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — To detect perilous conditions and prevent mine disaster, West Virginia University has installed what is believed to be the world's first electronic monitor system for a coal mine.

The experimental system is designed to summon miners from their work places before dangerous conditions produce noticeable signs of crisis.

Technicians have installed sensors at strategic locations in a mine operated by Eastern Associated Coal Corp. near Morgantown. The sensors are connected through data relay stations to the university's engineering sciences building, where a computer analyzes the sensor's findings and signals any danger.

Ashville Dog Places 4th In Kennel Show

Dr. Shirley Quillen of Ashville showed her German Shepherd, Liebchen von Heiterkeit C. D., at the Dayton Kennel Club Show Sunday.

Liebchen scored 186 points out of a possible 200 in the Open A Obedience class to take fourth place. Her score qualified her for the first of three legs toward her Companion Dog Excellent Degree.

Cincinnati Swords Face Red Wings

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—The Cincinnati Swords' take their high-scoring attack against Virginia's stingy-gloved goalie Doug Grant tonight in the opening game of the American Hockey League semifinal series.

"Grant better be ready for heavy artillery," said bearded Rick Dudley, the Swords' leading playoff scorer who was at his best against Virginia during the season.

BancOhio Reports Income Up For First Quarter '73

BancOhio Corporation reports that, for the first three months of 1973 ending March 31, consolidated income before securities gains or losses totaled $4,642,692 or 67 cents per average outstanding common share.

This represents a 13.6 per cent increase over the same period in 1972 when income was $4,087,038 or $.60 per common share. The Second National Banc is an affiliate of BancOhio. Consolidated net income after securities gains or losses for the first three months ending March 31, 1973 was $4,575,370 or 66 cents per average common share which compares with $4,444,494 or 65 cents per share for the same period in 1972. Earnings per common share have been computed on the average shares outstanding in each period which were 6,881,657 in 1973 and 6,853,386 in 1972.

On March 31, 1973 BancOhio Corporation, which at that date had 34 affiliated banks operating 161 banking offices, reported total loans of $1,287,838,351, an increase of $265,899,640 over the first quarter ending March 31, 1972. Total deposits reported on March 31, 1973 were $2,060,802,381 which compares with $1,946,328,268 reported on the same date in 1972.

Total shareholders' equity for BancOhio Corporation was $177,862,348 on March 31, 1973 as compared to $165,747,050 on the same date in 1972. Remaining Ohio's largest multi-bank holding company, BancOhio Corporation recorded total consolidated assets of $2,592,461,657 on March 31, 1973.

In January 1973, BancOhio acquired, for $1,000,000 in cash, all of the capital stock of Citizensbank, National Association, Felicity. The acquisition, resulting in a merger with the Corporation's Loveland affiliated bank, was accounted for as a purchase. Accordingly, only the results of operations since the date of acquisition are included in the financial statements.

In February 1973, BancOhio acquired all of the capital stock of The Peoples Savings Bank Company, Delta, and The Western Security Bank, Sandusky, in exchange for shares of the Corporation's common stock. These transactions have been accounted for as poolings of interest and accordingly the financial statements have been restated to include the newly affiliated banks for both periods.

OSU Alumni Club Holds Annual Meet

The Pickaway County OSU Alumni Club's annual dinner meeting was held April 12 at the Pickaway Country Club with approximately 80 members and guests present.

The invocation was given by Dr. Charles B. Hardin. President Dr. William A. Myers conducted the business meeting. Officers elected for 1973-74 are: president, Chaney Vance; vice-president, Virgil Anderson; secretary, Mrs. Robert Liggett; and treasurer, George Hamrick. Directors elected for 1976 are Robert Cole and Mrs. Donald Archer. Other directors serving are Donald Archer, Dr. David Smith, William Heiskell, and Dr. Charles Hardin.

Robert Scherer, local Development Fund Chairman, reported that Pickaway County Alumni donated over $3000 to the OSU Development Fund last year.

A weekend trip to the OSU-Michigan game was discussed. George Hamrick is to be in charge of arrangements.

Dr. Richard Armitage, OSU Ombudsman, was introduced and explained to the group that as an ombudsman it was his job to listen to complaints from students and faculty and to help correct the inevitable injustices that do occur in all large systems. He then cited examples of the various and numerous problems that he had handled.

The meeting was adjourned with the singing of "Carmen Ohio" led by Mrs. Glenn McCoy.

Do It Yourself

The Circleville area Chamber of Commerce and City Council are making plans for a community cleanup project after both groups received numerous complaints of trash dumping, apparently abandoned vehicles, and other eye-sores cluttering the city.

The Chamber's Community Appearance Committee, chaired by John Farthing, feels that property clean-up is the responsibility of the property owner and his committee will attack the problem from that angle.

They are asking residents to "do it themselves," dispose of junk around your house and yard.

New Machine Would Boost Mine Safety

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Underground coal mining accidents could be reduced by as much as 25 per cent with the use of an innovative mining machine to enter the testing stage soon, according to a U.S. Bureau of Mines official.

Donald G. Rogich, head of the bureau's division of mine systems engineering, Wednesday said a shuttle car with a rotating cab and between-the-wheels operating position could substantially reduce mishaps in mines with four feet-to-eight feet seams of coal. That would mean about two-thirds of the nation's underground mines, he said.

Rogich, speaking at an occupational health and safety conference, said experimentation with the shuttle car will begin this fall with a one-year test at an Island Creek Coal Co. mine near Prestonsburg, Ky.

The vehicle, used to transport miners to and from the surface, would "encourage men to stay in the cab, where they would be better protected" from roof falls and other hazards, Rogich said. It would also allow better vision and more mobility for operators, he explained.

The cab is designed to depress under the force of a roof fall, placing the stress on the frame.

Rogich said other devices to be used on a trial basis include a horizontally hinged cab for loading machines giving greater visibility to operators, and an automated roof bolter incorporating temporary roof support.

Inland Waterway Study Ordered Across Nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Transportation and the Army Corps of Engineers today ordered a study of means by which the inland waterways, the Great Lakes and coastal waters might better be meshed into a national transportation system.

Bechtel Inc. of San Francisco received a $140,000 contract for such a study, to be completed next January.

The study will examine changes in inland waterway use, brought about by advances in technology, and the legal, regulatory and financial arrangements needed for an efficient national integrated system.

"We will be looking at the economic, social and environmental aspects of inland waterway use as these factors apply to the present and the future," Secretary of Transportation Claude S. Brinegar said.

Tarlton Plans Postal Day Observance

Postmaster Virginia M. Hartranft announced today she is inviting all postal customers in the Tarlton, Ohio area to attend "Postal People Day" ceremonies April 30, as well as inviting some notables to participate.

The Postal People ceremonies in honor of the employees of the Tarlton Post Office are part of Postal Week designated for April 29-May 5 by Postmaster General E. T. Klassen.

Postal People Day, April 30, will be marked by "first-day-of-issue" ceremonies for ten unusual new 8-cent U.S. postage stamps honoring Postal employees. The ceremonies will be held at 12:30 p.m. at Tarlton, Ohio 43156.

In designating Postal Week, Postmaster General Klassen said, in part: "Every community in the United States is linked to the nation and the world by our national mail service. The welfare of every citizen, every business, on every street and across the countryside, is dependent upon this vast communication network, available to all our people the year round, at a cost everyone can afford."

One of the principal aims of Postal Week; Klassen explained in his special message, will be to promote the "informed understanding, cooperation, support and constructive suggestions of every citizen and community" for the benefit of the U.S. Postal Service, as well as call attention to the daily public services performed by postal employees.

As part of Postal Week celebrations, the Tarlton Post Office plans other activities, the Postmaster reported.

Discover Cracks In Steel Girders

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Work has been halted on the milelong twin I-480 bridges south of Cleveland because state investigators found cracks in some of the steel girders, state engineers reported.

John W. Rawlins, an engineer for the Ohio Department of Transportation, said he ordered the work stopped after small cracks were discovered in girders being bolted into place on the eastern section of the bridges.

The work was being done by a subcontractor, Vogt & Conant Co. Horvitz Co. is general contractor on the $29 million project.

"We don't anticipate that any of the steel will have to be taken down. We feel that this is something that can be corrected at the construction site," Rawlins said.

Soviet Policy On Jewish Taxes Create Suspicion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House-inspired announcement that Moscow has suspended high exit fees for Russian Jews seeking to emigrate contains no guarantee that the taxes won't be reimposed at the Kremlin's whim, some U.S. officials say.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said Wednesday the Soviet leaders have promised President Nixon that the education taxes on Jews seeking to emigrate to Israel will be suspended indefinitely.

Nonetheless, some sources say the suspension stands on nothing but the Soviet word. They claim the two written communications recently sent to Nixon on the Jewish question do not promise even temporary suspension.

Rather, the letters pointedly refer to Soviet legal clauses providing for exemptions to the high exit taxes. Exemptions have been granted over the last month.

Being part of the Nixon administration, these officials stop short of saying that Nixon has been used by Russian leaders anxious to still the controversy in order to obtain improved trade benefits from the United States.

However, that possibility was suggested by American Jewish organizations and congressional critics of the Soviet emigration policy.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said there is nothing to stop Moscow from reinstating the taxes he labels

Girl Dies From Inhaling Aerosol Vapor

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Five-year-old Marcia Overfield, who had been in a coma for six days, died late Wednesday night in Hillcrest Hospital.

The child was found unconscious in her bedroom last Thursday with an aerosol can of medicated vaporizer nearby. Her physician, Dr. Eugene J. Weber said she apparently was suffering from toxic effects of the gaseous propellant in the aerosol can.

The coroner will rule.

Marcia's father, Ronald L. Overfield, said the family has used the decongestant for years. He said he found his daughter lying face down on her bed.

A handkerchief found nearby had been moistened with the spray, he said.

The child's heart had stopped but she was revived when she was admitted to the hospital.

An official of ChesebroughPonds, Inc., of Greenwich, Conn., which makes the vaporizer under the trade name Pertussin, said the container carries instructions that the spray is to be directed away from the user's face and that if used properly it is not hazardous.

A spokesman for the Food and Drug Administration said also the product is considered safe when used as recommended.

Overfield is curriculum director for Mayfield schools. He and his wife have two other daughters, 10 and 13.

Energy Policy Hurts Ohio Mines

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Sulphur emission problems in Ohio are causing industry to turn to oil and natural gas for power, contributing to a coal market shortage, an industry spokesman said Wednesday.

About 75 small Ohio coal mines have closed this year because of reduced need and other problems such as greater oil import quotas, and high reclamation and rejuvenation costs, said John Dragos, executive secretary of the Ohio Coal Producers' Association air quality council.

The first of a series of Environmental Protection Agency hearings concerning sulphur dioxide emissions, is currently underway in Cleveland.

Dragos has testified that the minimum standard set by the EPA prohibits burning of any Ohio coals without installation of "very costly" sulphur dioxide removal equipment.

Coal in Ohio, the nation's sixth largest coal producer, contains .6 per cent sulphur.

"Not one sulphur removal unit that can take away any significant amount has been demonstrated in the U.S.," Dragos said.

Ohio ERA Ratification Chances Nil

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Any possibility of Ohio ratifying the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution this session apparently died in a nine-member Senate committee Wednesday.

The Financial Institutions, Insurance and Elections Committee, by a 6-3 vote, turned down a motion to recommend the resolution for passage.

Sen. Stanley J. Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati, committee chairman, said it meant the death of the issue during the current session. The resolution was also killed in the Senate two years earlier.

"I see no possibility of it being revived," Aronoff said, "because of the overwhelming negative vote. Every person who voted in the negative indicated they will not vote to reconsider."

Technically, the issue could be brought back before the committee again if a member who voted on the prevailing side made a motion to reconsider.

Such motions are made only when supporters of an issue know they have the votes for passage. Aronoff, who voted for it, said that is not the case in the ERA matter.

The House-passed resolution was opposed by the powerful Ohio AFL-CIO, whose president, Frank King, said before the committee took up the matter that he had five sure negative votes.

'War Crimes' Issue Rises At Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An international law expert is scheduled to testify at the Pentagon papers trial today, after the government raised the issue of possible U.S. "war crimes" while questioning codefendant Daniel Ellsberg.

Richard Falk, a Princeton University professor of international law, is expected to expand at the request of the defense on Ellsberg's comment that illegal actions by U.S. officials occurred during the Vietnam war.

Ellsberg's assertion came Wednesday when Asst. U.S. Atty. David Nissen, thumbing through transcripts of Ellsberg's public speeches, asked if the defendant hadn't accused U.S. officials of conspiring to commit war crimes.

"I'm not a lawyer, Mr. Nissen," Ellsberg replied. "But as I read the law, I believe there were illegal actions, some of which, I regret to say, I participated in myself, without asking myself what they were."

Ellsberg stressed repeatedly that his understanding of the principles of international law are those of a layman. Defense attorneys, who had planned to rest their case after Ellsberg left the witness stand, changed their minds and decided to summon Falk for an expert's opinion.

Ellsberg and Anthony Russo, both former researchers on government projects for the Rand Corp., are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft for copying the Pentagon papers, a top secret study of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Eagleton Rips U.S. Bombing

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—U.S. Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., attacked President Nixon's Asian policies Wednesday, charging that the Cambodian bombing has "some of the earmarks" of the initial U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

During a news conference at Cleveland Hopkins International Airport, and again in a speech on the Elyria campus of Lorain Community College, Eagleton attacked the bombing as "without a legal or constitutional basis."

Complaining that the bombing has drawn little attention, The Missouri senator said "I see no resolve in Congress to terminate the U.S. presence in Southeast Asia. I don't detect the will either in Congress or in the people at large."

Eagleton praised President Nixon for his order suspending oil imports. He said he favors increased importation of oil but recognizes that "there are great foreign policy questions. If we become over-dependent on Mideast oil we will have some national security or defensive implications that will be quite serious."

Eagleton had appearances scheduled today in Akron and Cleveland.

Name Bernardin To Vatican Post

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Cincinnati Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin has been named to the Sacred Congregation for Bishops, becoming only the second American to be named to such a position without first being a cardinal.

Archbishop Bernardin is the second youngest U.S. archbishop.

The post is one of the central and specialized agencies working for the pope.

Archbishop Bernardin will also remain head of southwestern Ohio's 550,000 Catholics.

Officials of a General Motors plant here are urging acceptance of its double-alkali sulphur dioxide removal system, which they say is capable of removing about 90 per cent of the pollutant.

"But this is only a demonstration unit," Dragos said. "Very few large industrial or electric companies will be able to comply by 1975."

At the same time, EPA officials contend the technology for sulphur dioxide removal is available, but coal-using industries have been lax in applying removal methods.

"There are three companies right now that are offering adequate removal systems," said EPA waste management official Howard Scott.

Scott called sulphur dioxide emissions a "major problem" in northeastern Ohio.

Cleveland shows .04 parts of sulphur dioxide per million, compared to a healthy minimum of .02 parts per million, he said.

"Sulphur, by itself, is not so bad," he admitted. "But when you combine it with other particulates, it causes respiratory problems." The particulate level of northeastern Ohio is about "twice the normal level" allowed for clean air, he said.

Scott and Dragos agreed it would be nearly impossible for all Ohio coal-using industry's to install sulphur removal equipment by the July 1, 1975, compliance deadline.

Dragos recommends "alternative strategies" for combating air pollution, including a requirement that industries be required to switch to low-sulphur fuels during high pollution period.

Ancient City Of Anshan Could Change History Books

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An Ohio State University anthropologist says his discovery of the ancient city of Anshan in southwestern Iran disproves the theory that Mesopotamia was the exclusive location of early Near Eastern urban civilization.

Dr. William M. Sumner said his excavations show the city existed as far back as 3,000 to 3,200 B.C.

This is about the same time, Sumner said, attributed to the first cities in Mesopotamia, an area in the lower valley of the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers.

"Anshan is as old as Mesopotamia," Sumner said. "Whether it is older we won't know until we make further digs."

Anshan is about 700 miles from Mesopotamia.

Sumner said material he has found at Anshan indicates the city had "contact and trade with other cities, probably including Mesopotamia."

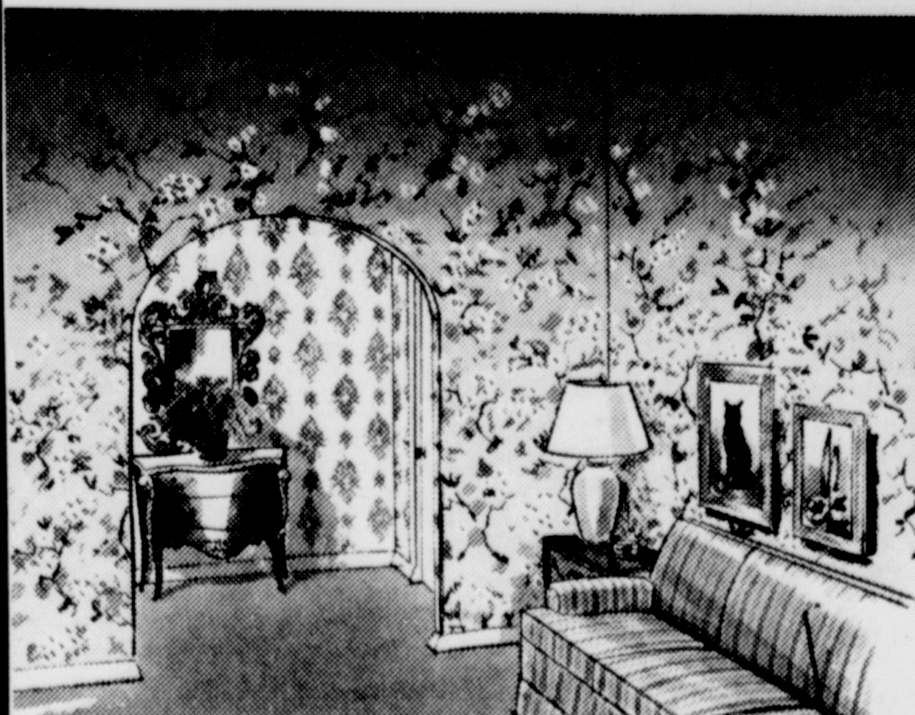

"Mesopotamia was a resource-starved area," he said. "Just rivers and clay. They needed to be provided with stone and wood to build with. There was plenty of wood and stone in Anshan, which is located in the Zagros Mountains."

Sumner believes the city was abandoned in the first or second century A.D. He thinks the population ranged from 10,000 to 30,000.

Sumner discovered Anshan in 1967 while doing research work for his doctorate degree. He returned in 1971 for a month of excavation, dug for two more months last year and plans to return in the fall of 1974 for several more months of work.

Harsha Opposes Diverting Highway Trust Funds

Diverting highway trust funds for mass transit would be a "deadly mistake" warned Rep. William H. Harsha of Ohio's Sixth Congressional District which includes Pickaway County.

Harsha contends it would not only hamper needed highway improvements but also would cripple vital highway safety programs. "There isn't enough money to do both," he argued today as he urged the House of Representatives, during a floor debate on highway legislation, not to open the trust fund for mass transit purposes.

Most rural area congressmen oppose the legislation to free the money for mass transit because they believe it would benefit only the large cities.

"Just to meet the Nation's essential highway needs would cost $300 billion while present trust fund revenues could supply only half of that amount," explained Harsha, the ranking Republican on the House Public Works Committee.

"I am not talking about new construction. Ninety-three per cent of the $300 billion is earmarked for improvement of existing roads, a vast majority (80 per cent) of which was constructed as early as 1930 or before and requires upgrading. In fact, as of 1970, half of all urban highways and 70 per cent of all rural roads were deficient.

"Add to this the discontinuance of many Penn Central rail lines plus Am-

Student Aid Bill Passes Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — College students would be eligible for $872 million in federal aid to help them attend school if an emergency money bill gets presidential approval.

The bill, passed by Congress Wednesday, would direct President Nixon to continue the existing student aid programs instead of putting most of the money into a new one, as he had requested.

The $872 million for student aid is the same amount Nixon requested, but the bill provides only $122 million for the new basic grant program instead of the $622 million asked.

The Senate originally voted to raise the money for the new program to $385 million, but in conference with the House the higher figure was dropped in favor of the House version.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., who originally proposed the new program, objected strongly to the conference agreement but accepted it because of what he said was the urgent need of the colleges to know what financial aid will be available for students now applying for the fall term.

Pell said the allocation of funds in the bill would "destroy much of the effectiveness of the new program" for this year. He voiced hope Congress would greatly increase the funds for it in the fiscal 1974 budget, in which Nixon requested $959 million.

Airlines Face Fuel Shortages

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Fuel shortages may force a reduction in the number of airline flights and interrupt service at some airports, the vice chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board has warned.

Whitney Gilliland, the second ranking CAB member, told a news conference at the assembly plant of McDonnell Douglas Corp. here Tuesday there is a possibility that flights may be diverted when fuel supplies run low at a particular airport.

Gilliland also said growing fuel shortages may produce a restrictive government attitude toward new routes for airlines.

Court Upholds Oil Spillage Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal law presents no barrier to tough state laws imposing full liability on shippers for oil spill damage, the Supreme Court unanimously held Wednesday.

The court in an opinion written by its environmentalist William O. Douglas upheld a law which had been declared invalid by a three-judge federal panel in Florida.

The state law imposes strict liability for damages caused by oil spills in Florida's territorial waters from any oil handling or drilling operation, or from any ship involved with such a facility.

Only one-third of Canada's total area has been brought under development to date.

trak proposals to curtail passenger service, and you throw an additional burden not heretofore contemplated upon an already inadequate highway system," he said.

Rep. Harsha stressed that none of these improvements takes into account the "vast sums of money desperately needed for highway safety programs." He cited National Safety Council predictions that during the 1970's alone, 600,000 people will lose their lives and over 20 million will be seriously injured, with the economic waste for highway mishaps approaching $200 billion.

"These horrendous statistics for fatalities in just one decade rival the total amount of casualties for all the wars in which this country has ever been involved in nearly 200 years; and for injuries, this figure is 12 times as many as were wounded in these wars," he said.

"Stopping this carnage and needless waste of American lives and dollars seems to me to be of an unquestionably higher priority than the alleviation of highway congestion, particularly when even the 1972 Department of Transportation report indicates that major shifts in funds, while improving transit, would do very little to change air pollution and would result in increased highway fatalities.

"By diverting trust funds away from highway safety, then, we would be jeopardizing the lives and limbs of every person using the highways, and I do not want the responsibility on my head for supporting such a deadly mistake," Harsha concluded.

Means Tells Of Indian Despair

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—American Indian Movement leader Russell Means says he recalls his daughter returning from school and asking, "Daddy, where were the Indians when Columbus discovered America?"

The despair that leads to high suicide rates among Indians and such circumstances as at Wounded Knee, S.D., "starts right there," in school, he said Wednesday.

Means told a City Club audience he returned to Cleveland with two objectives:

"To raise funds for our legal defense, and to tell the truth as we know it inside Wounded Knee."

He said the government and the news media presented in occupation of the South Dakota hamlet as an uprising led by outsiders and as Indian-instigated violence.

But Means said the occupation came at the request of local Indians, and that the violence had been precipitated by the government.

Means surrendered to the surrounding army of U.S. marshals earlier this month in return for a meeting with White House officials. But he said that agreement also had been violated in several respects by federal officials, and he told the Clevelanders they could add it to the list of broken treaties between Indians and the United States.

Since his surrender, Means has been freed on $25,000 bond, although he still faces trial on 11 federal charges ranging from burglary and arson to assaulting federal officers.

Means, who spent several years in Cleveland when the AIM headquarters was here, noted that he returned as a celebrity.

"I just think it's sad while I lived here I was ignored, and that violence brought me here to the Cleveland City Club," he said.

Throughout his speech, Means urged white Americans to "find out the truth about Wounded Knee."

"The ignorance of non-Indian people as to what Indian people are all about I think is a shame," he said, adding later that it was also crippling to Indians' spirit.

Referring to a high rate of suicide among Indians, Means said despair begins in school "when you begin to realize your way of life is completely wrong" and that "you should stop being a pagan and a primitive and become a civilized white person."

Means said the federal government "has two choices" at Wounded Knee. Either "they live up to their own laws, or two...they massacre us," he said.

He said the Indians want "our own sovereignty as separate nations," a sovereignty which he said "has been defined by the Supreme Court of the United States."

"If we lose at Wounded Knee, everybody loses," he said. "If you do not take a very close look at what is happening at Wounded Knee, then you don't know what your country is all about and you don't deserve it."

Kiwanis Club Holds Lenten Services

Circleville Kiwanians had final Lenten Services Monday at the regular meeting under the direction of the Rev. David Frazer.

In other business, it was announced that next Monday's meeting will be a carry-in dinner for members, wives and guests at the Presbyterian Church. Ed Farynowski is in charge of reservations for the 6:30 p.m. meeting.

The club announced final plans for their annual Easter Egg Hunt to be held 9 a.m. at Atwater and South Court St. schools for children 6 thru 12 and at 10 a.m. at Ted Lewis Park for children 5-years-old and under. The hunt is scheduled for Saturday.

Pen Pal Wedding Also 1st Meeting

CHICAGO (AP) — "I've told myself at times that this is crazy and that I can't go through with it, but I will," says Ron Word.

The 26-year-old production engineer leaves May 3 for the Philippines to marry a pen pal he has never met.

Word has been exchanging letters and recording tapes with 20-year-old Grace Darlene Torralba for 18 months. They also have exchanged photographs of each other, but attempts to make connections by telephone have failed.

"About last December we found we cared for each other more than friendship," Word said of his fiancée, a medical student at the Nagaview campus of Philippine Union College. Her hometown is Legazpi, a small community on the main island of Luzon.

"Never having met is kind of foolish," Word said, adding that at first he was uncertain about the marriage plans.

However, he said his conviction was strengthened by the responses of his parents and friends.

Republic Steel Income Rises

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—The net income of Republic Steel Corp. for the first three months this year more than doubled that for the co-responding quarter of 1972, the firm announced Tuesday.

Sales and shipments also increased, it added.

Republic reported net income of $20,539,840, equivalent to $1.27 per share of common stock, for the first quarter of 1973. This compared to $9,427,879, or 58 cents per share, the first three months last year.

Sales for the January-March quarter totaled $499,243,652, compared to $370,553,709 for the first quarter last year.

Barnard Becomes Full Professor

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Heart transplant pioneer Prof. Christiaan Barnard has become the first faculty member of the University of Cape Town to be named a full professor by ad hoc merit promotion.

Previously an honorary professor of surgical science, Prof. Barnard is now a full professor in the university's medical school.

Word said his parents "were surprised, but surprisingly happy. My mother is worried about the cost (for travel) but that was the only objection."

Word "met" his future wife through a pen pal advertisement. He described their relationship as "very compatible." He said he admires her intellectual development, her beliefs "and her over-all attitude. She has a curiosity about everything, a desire for knowledge."

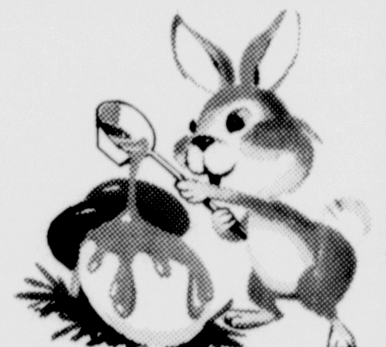

He described himself as having the same traits.

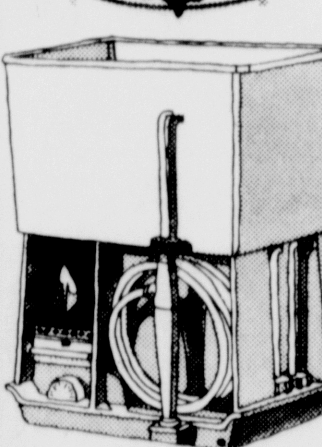

State Auditor Announces Gas Tax Distribution

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson announced today the distribution of $8,880,353 in gasoline taxes for April to Ohio's municipalities, counties and townships.

Total payments to municipalities in Pickaway County were $10,445 with Circleville receiving the largest share, $6,915. Distribution to other municipalities in the county were: Ashville, $1,210; Commercial Point, $190; Harisburg, $31; New Holland, $474; Orient, $419; South Bloomfield, $375; Tarlton, $249; Williamsport, $582.

The county received $30,000 and each of the townships $1,200. Gasoline tax revenues must be used only for road, street and bridge maintenance and repair.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You now have the chance to obtain the information you need from higher-ups during the daytime. The evening finds you able to take advantage of another opportunity. You can afford to help a good friend who is in need.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Attend social affairs where you can meet persons who can be helpful to you in the future. Now is the time to pursue a desire of long standing. Use extreme care in travel. Think logically.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Tap your subconscious for the answers you need to present problems, which are important. Your mate will go along with you in a new plan you have in mind. Take health treatments.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Strive to gain more goodwill from associates today, which will be relatively easy. Improve your image in public and make life easier for yourself. Use good judgment in travel.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can handle tasks easily if you go ahead and act cheerfully instead of deliberating so much. Seek the right clothing that makes you look more refined. Stay within your budget.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Use astuteness in handling family affairs now and get good results. Clear up a condition that is not good at all. Don't act as though you know it all or you will receive illwill from friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Use good judgment in handling problems with others and get the right results. Be more cheerful when conversing with friends, associates, relatives and business contacts. Be poised.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Engage in practical interests that mean much to you; consult experts. Make improvements to property that add to its beauty, comfort and value in the future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are highly magnetic now but take care you don't take unfair advantage of others and alienate them. Tone down some for best results. Gain the aid of those you meet socially.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Dealing in a conscientious fashion with others is the best way to get good results now. Keep any information given you in confidence. You can easily make a good impression on others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A day to go out and make new contacts instead of staying in a limited groove. Meet higher-ups who can be helpful to you in your career. Put those talents you have to work.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Good friends mean much to you now so show them your appreciation and gain increased goodwill for the days ahead. A new friend you have can give you the information you need.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take steps to improve handling your duties. Attend to a credit matter so it won't bother you any longer. You can easily avoid a dangerous situation tonight. Be alert at all times.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY — he or she will be one of those fascinating young people who thinks straight and talks straight and has realistic ideas. Give as much academic education as you can afford. An urge to travel should be satisfied early in life so your progeny can easily settle down to whatever stable field is decided upon as a career endeavor. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — If you hear "The Lone Ranger" on radio these days, don't be alarmed. It's still 1973.

What is happening is an aural time warp caused by Charles Michelson, a New York broadcasting veteran who for eight years has been promoting a gradual mini-boom in radio nostalgia.

He owns the rights to rebroadcast a dozen half-hour radio series that were the real biggies of the 1940s, series like "The Green Hornet," "The Shadow," "Gangbusters" and "Sherlock Holmes."

He began leasing them to stations in 1965 and says the shows now can be heard on more than 400 stations in major, medium and minor markets across the U.S.

Michelson got in the broadcasting business in 1938 as a distributor of the shows that now are his golden oldies. His market went flat in the 1950s with the arrival of television.

He went into television as a buyer of U.S. programs for the overseas TV stations. But he kept the 16-inch shellac records on which the words and deeds of Lamont Cranston, Kato and others were preserved.

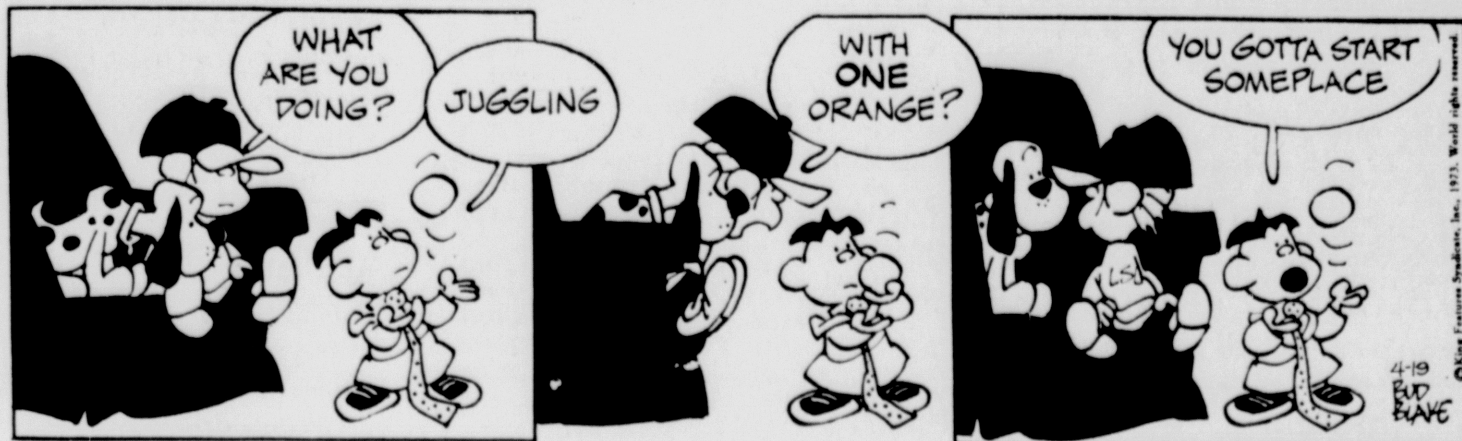

"We decided around Christmastime in 1964 to throw out these old records," said Michelson, 63. "But just before we did it, I got a little sentimental — it must have been the holiday season — and I said, 'let's see if maybe we can do something with them.'"

Whereupon he wrote to friends he'd known for years at 25 key radio stations in the U.S. He proposed a revival of radio's golden days. Twelve state ruled or influenced by youth, and a "suicide squad" is a special squad used in kickoffs in football.

"Language is continually changing," according to David R. Replogle, Merriam president, "and never more so than in recent years. Today we are witnessing a groundswell of new movements and new ideas that began in the 1960s and are now beginning to take hold, and their contribution to the language has been enormous.

"In other years, new words came from the areas of technology and science and from such broad interests as urban development and ecology. Today they come from young people, from the black experience, from the drug scene, from fashion and entertainment, from the growing interest in new religions, and much more. They are also coming from our emphasis on leisure activity, sports in particular."

New sports terms listed in the dictionary include "chicane", which is a series of tight turns in opposite directions in an otherwise straight stretch of a road-racing course; "crackback", a blind-side block on a defensive back in football; "enduro", a long race stressing endurance rather than speed; "orienteering", a cross-country race on unfamiliar territory using maps and compasses; and "turfski", a ski on rollers.

Words that represent a variety of new interests and new ideas in the country include:

"Chance music" — where the element of chance is used, for instance, in selecting tempo, pitch or dynamics by the throw of the dice.

"Quadruphony" — the use of four transmission channels in recording or transmitting sound.

"Videophone" — a telephone equipped for transmission of video as well as audio signals so that the users can see each other.

"Cryonics" — the practice of freezing a dead human being in hope of bringing him back to life at some future time.

"Water bed" — a bed whose mattress is a plastic bag filled with water.

"Acid rock" — rock music with lyrics having cryptic reference to a drug.

There are other new words of a general nature: "auteur theory", relating to a cinematic technique where the director has complete control of all aspects of the production; "duende", from the Spanish which means the power to attract through personal magnetism; "dashiki", a brightly colored loose-fitting pull-over garment; "computerese", which means jargon used by computer technologists; and "strung out", from the drug world, which means being addicted to a drug or being physically debilitated.

Two popular new words are "ego trip" — an act that satisfies and enhances one's ego — and "trendy" — very fashionable, up to date.

CAIRO (AP) — Man may not live by bread alone, but many Egyptians eat little else.

To make matters worse, a recent survey found much of the bread is under the legal weight, is of poor quality and may contain bran, stone dust, or pebbles.

Egyptians eat some 620 grams of bread a day, compared to 137 grams daily for Europeans, 120 for Africans and 67 grams for Americans, according to Dr. Ismail Abdou, director of the nutrition institute.

The dependency on bread underlines the weakness of the nutrition and economic levels, observers say.

Abdou says bread provides some 70 per cent of the energy and protein needs of the average Egyptian and may provide as much as 93 per cent for the poorer persons who can afford little else.

But he says this vital commodity has lost its nutritive value as recipes for flour and baked bread are increasingly violated. The difference means a loaf of bread may provide only 9 per cent of the protein requirements, instead of 24.6 per cent, he says.

He favors following the lead of Europe and the United States and introducing vitamin enriched bread.

Mustafa Kamal Mourad, a member of Parliament's Economic Committee, says Cairo's 6 million inhabitants consume some 20 million loaves of bread a day, most of it in the form of bigger than dinner plate size hollow pancakes weighing some 145 grams each.

The government spends some $46 million annually to keep the price of this type of bread to half a piastri—or one U.S. penny.

Egypt, which produces about 700,000 tons of wheat annually, must import about 2.3 million tons each year.

But the owner of a bakery in Cairo says the flour used to make bread now days is the worst available in the 20 years since Gamal Abdul Nasser overthrew the monarchy. He describes the flour as dark, too soft and not able to absorb water.

Because the mills deliver the flour hot and not properly aired it loses weight, and the bakeries are forced to make up the loss, he says.

The head of a bakery company told a newsmen statistics show that 65 per cent of the bread produced by Egypt's 2,000 plus bakeries violate health standards. He predicted quality would not improve as long as the ageing-old milling and bakery methods predominate.

Most of the country's mills still crush and separate the wheat with heavy, long-used stones, making quality control impossible, he says.

Smoke Barred From Commons

LONDON (AP) — The British House of Commons is to stay free from smoke pollution.

Pipe-smoking Labor MP Roy Mason urged that experiments be conducted to permit smoking during certain periods when the house is sitting.

Rejecting the idea, Conservative floor leader James Prior said: "I am not aware of any general desire by MPs for such an experiment. On the contrary, my predecessors experienced pressure for the extension of nonsmoking areas."

Predictions During Confab

STAUNTON, Va. (AP) — April 19 isn't a good day for sailing the Atlantic. Psychic David Hoy, personal consultant to Sonny and Cher, says, "On April 19 one of the largest reported icebergs will be sighted in the North Atlantic."

Hoy was speaking at an ESP Conference held at Mary Baldwin College here. He also forecast that President Nixon will visit Cuba within four months and that neither Spiro Agnew nor Ted Kennedy will be nominated for President in 1976.

Boy Pinned Under Truck After Crash

David A. Bond Jr., 16, 213 Sherwood Ave., Circleville was seriously injured 12:40 a.m. Thursday when he was tossed from a pickup truck and pinned under the vehicle.

Bond was treated at Berger Hospital's emergency room for contusions and abrasions of his back and right arm. He was transferred to University Hospital, Columbus, for further study of chest and lung injuries.

The accident occurred on the Bell Station Rd., a half mile west of Route 188, when Robert N. Fetherolf, 18, Route 5, lost control of the truck as he was driving up a hill.

The truck went off the left side of the road, but came back to the paved surface in a broadside.

The left front part of the cab struck a high bank and tossed Bond from the vehicle. The truck continued spinning and the left rear hit the bank, pinning Bond under the springs.

The vehicle was put on jacks to remove Bond.

Fetherolf was treated for abrasions to both arms and an abrasion to his left ear.

Investigating officer was Deputy Sheriff Lowell Ferguson.

Item Is Corrected

The money suit filed by Harry D. and Muriel Thacker, Route 2, Williamsport, cites the International Heating and Air Conditioning Corp., Jim Leist of Jim's Pay and Save, and Joe Wright, Williamsport, as defendants in controversy over allegedly defective heating system installed in Thacker's new home built by Wright. The heating system however, was installed by employees of Jim Leist, and not by Wright as reported in court news.

Amanda Principal Resigns

Amanda-Clearcreek Board of Education offered teaching contracts to 35 teachers currently on the staff and accepted resignations from the elementary principal and two others.

Charles Martindale, who has served as elementary principal at Amanda for the past three years, offered his resignation Monday. Other resignations acted upon included those of Miss Arlene Cohen, sixth grade teacher at Amanda, and William Cassill, industrial arts teacher.

John Leininger, junior high school math teacher who held a one year contract, was not re-employed.

Some 49 students, teachers and citizens were present to discuss the high school head football coaching position. Tal Gulbis, history and geography teacher, was not re-employed as high school track and football coach on the recommendation of board members and the superintendent. He had served in that capacity in the school system for three years.

Four teachers announced their plans for retirement at the close of this school year. These were high school

English teacher Mrs. Beatrice Skillman, third grade teacher Mrs. Faye Valentine, third grade teacher Mrs. Corrinth Williamson and home economics and geography teacher Mrs. Myrtle Wetherell.

Business News

Three salesmen with Rod Bell Motor Sales Co., Circleville, have been named members of Ford Division's exclusive 300-500 Club, a national organization of outstanding Ford salesmen. They are Roy F. Morgan, Logan Campbell and Edward Warning.

Membership in the club was earned through individual sales success during the 1972 calendar year.

Club members will receive awards from M. S. Shanks, Ford Division's Cincinnati district sales manager, at a dinner on April 28 at the Beverly Hills Country Club in Newport, Ky.

The purpose of the 300-500 Club is to recognize outstanding salesmen and to highlight automotive sales positions as "valuable service to the national economy and the local community," Shanks said.

VFW Announces Annual Egg Hunt

The annual children's Easter egg hunt sponsored by Circleville VFW Post 3331 will be held 10:30 a.m. Saturday at Thomas Field, Route 22 West, rain or shine, it was announced today by the post.

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Spaceman Fred W. Haise Jr., a member of the crew of Apollo 13, is leaving the astronaut corps to become an executive in the space shuttle program.

Haise, 39, has been appointed assistant to the manager of the space shuttle orbiter program office at the Johnson Space Center here.

An astronaut since April 1966, Haise made only one space flight — the moon mission of Apollo 13 which was forced to return to earth without landing on the moon after an oxygen tank explosion.
